WE NOMINATE

Ernest Frederick Johnson, an engineering scientist with a literary critic's capacity for turning pungent phrases, who in his 13th year as a Princetonian has been tapped for a newly created, highly responsible university post—Associate Dean of the Faculty. Marking the first time that a member of the Engineering Faculty has become a pivotal figure in Princeton's "central administration," the appointment of the 43-year old Johnson underscores the University's tremendous development in the post-World War II Era. In December, 1961, the total officers of instruction and research number 1,170 men and women, a figure which compares with 500 persons 15 years ago.

In his new position, working under the veteran James Douglas Brown, senior officer of the University after President Robert F. Goheen, Johnson will be largely concerned with the forward planning of Princeton's educational operations. Centered in the Dean of the Faculty's Nassau Hall office are the administrative oversight of the teaching departments and all matters bearing upon "the effectiveness and well-being of the faculty." These have been ever-mounting responsibilities in recent years, particularly in view of the development of the Woodrow Wilson School and the School of Engineering, the growth of "Organized Research," and the introduction of such undertakings as the Program in East Asian Studies.

Johnson, a native of Jamestown, N. Y., and a member of the Class of 1940 at Lehigh University, is eminently well qualified to cope with the complexities of the task he will officially shoulder next July 1st. A remarkable teacher on both the undergraduate and graduate levels in the Department of Chemical Engineering, he has been closely associated with the government-sustained Plasma Physics Laboratory at the James Forrestal Research Center. In this cluster of seven buildings, representing some $35 million in government support and formerly called Project Matterhorn, Princeton scientists are carrying forward long-range investigations of the physics of very hot ionized gases, which—if successful—would provide an infinite energy source.

A consultant to both manufacturing and engineering firms, the dean designate served a demanding apprenticeship in industry prior to turning to teaching and research. He spent six years with the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation as research engineer, project leader and production control supervisor and then undertook graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania where as a Research Fellow in the Thermodynamics Research Laboratory he received his doctoral degree. Called to Princeton in 1918, he was advanced to an associate professorship in 1954 and five years later was a full professor in Princeton's "hottest engineering department."

In recent years Johnson, active in both the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and the American Chemical Society, has made major contributions in the increasingly vital area of study concerned with the automatic control of industrial processes. Two winters ago Johnson, a delegate to the International Congress on Automatic Control held in Moscow in 1960, startled professional meetings in New York City with the straightforward declaration: "The chemical engineer without some minimal grasp of automatic process control and process dynamics must be considered technically illiterate." He went on to spell out the need for carefully planned, individually tailored process control courses.

For bringing to challenging administrative problems the insights and understanding of the trained scientist-teacher; for stepping into a key position at a time when engineering curricula everywhere are undergoing searching re-evaluation; for his demonstrated competence in his chosen fields; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

THIS IS PATTERSON

Interview With Mayor. "To do something, rather than to look toward new approaches to things, and to be proud of accomplishments rather than to make any startling changes in the method of government—these are the goals I look toward."

In an interview with TOWN TOPICS this week, Republican Mayor-elect Henry S. Patterson expressed in this manner his philosophy of government.

"Two of the most important things we have to do are to get a truck by-pass and to remove the indecision resulting from the urban renewal controversies," Mr. Patterson stated

On specific issues:

Taxes. "Taxes are sure to go up. The need for increased Borough salaries can't be denied and parking lots are going to cost money."

Mr. Patterson cited the construction of an office building on the Nassau Street School property as a future rateable, and said he thought that such a building could be an attractive as well as profitable addition to Nassau Street.

He also expressed the opinion that the University would probably not object to sale of the property for commercial purposes.

New School. The Borough Board of Education has discussed with Mr. Patterson its plans to acquire 18 acres of land across from the high school for an "educational center" and Mr. Patterson said that the project appealed to him as a "different approach" to the problem of school construction.

"I guess my only opposition to the idea is based on my feeling that kids are going to get tired of going to school in the same spot from kindergarten through 12th grade," he said.

He said he felt that it would be a mistake to turn the Witherspoon Street School into a commercial property.

"There is need for housing in that area," he said, "and I think the property should be turned back into residential use and the school torn down; you can't remodel it."

Asked about the feasibility of using the land for a park or playground, Mr. Patterson said he believed that the future of parks for the Borough lay outside the community, and he referred to the 200 acres on River Road which had been planned as a Borough park but abandoned many years ago.

Jackson Street and Traffic. "Jackson Street should go through," Mr. Patterson stated. "I think we ought to go to Palmer Square, Inc., and see whether we can work out a property trade, with additional costs financed by the Borough."

In other traffic matters, Mr. Patterson said he believed that the Loop Road should be studied and "something done." He said that he had been in touch with Somerset County officials and Freeholders in regard to 206-A and that they agreed with him that the by-pass would be for the good of Somerset County, and that the County and the Borough of Princeton should work together to obtain the road.

Zoning. "We must decide what we really want in Princeton," Mr. Patterson said. "Dodd McHugh, our planner, has demonstrated conclusively to me that we have, potentially, the area to build up the community even more than it is now—but is this what we want?"

The new mayor said he felt that the present "quite stringent" parking requirements were probably necessary for high-rise office buildings.

"It would be a terrible shame to turn the Borough

"Despair . . . Mistrust . . . Uncertainty . . ." Will YOU Help?

From the 1961 TOWN TOPICS Christmas Appeal

"In a dreadfully torn home, in which Alcoholics Anonymous and others have struggled in vain to restore a degree of normalcy, a 'teen-age daughter with "superior intellectual potential" has been tight-roping the abyss of blank despair. Deeply aware of the wedges of mistrust and uncertainly which have driven between her parents for reasons not clear to her, Jane, with help of skilled counselors, is gaining the strength to cope with her reactions to emotional problems that for the past several years have had her teetering between human disaster and the promised land reserved for young men and women of high promise.

"And the same would apply to 16-year old Jerry, described by one adviser as a 'socially active, outgoing adolescent,' whose development in both the scholastic and social senses has been delayed by a chaotic, disruptive environment. He has been battling against overwhelming odds, has helped wherever possible with younger brothers and sisters, and has almost become accustomed to abuses and hardships that are harder to believe in every-day life in Princeton than they are in fiction. To a trained observer, there is growing hope for Jerry, if 'we only succeed in evolving an absorbing program of wholesome activities for the next couple of years.'"

Two weeks after the appeal had been made, contributions stood at $3047.75. Gifts made to the Fund not only bring Christmas cheer to many homes where it might otherwise be totally lacking, but provide assistance in many forms the year 'round.

Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund and mailed to Post Office Box 664, Princeton, N. J.

into one big parking lot," he said. "We do have the problem of not being able to develop because of the parking tangle. Perhaps two-story parking lots are something to consider, but they can't be just blocks of concrete. Maybe architects could come up with an ingenious plan like underground parking lots that would be out of sight."

Master Plan. "I strongly feel that we should revise the Master Plan, that we should not make Princeton bigger or different, or to bring change by urban renewal projects."

He added that, in 1950 when the Master Plan was conceived, nobody foresaw "this explosion" in Princeton.

If an area is under the threat of major change or urban renewal, Mr. Patterson said, its residents are inclined to let things go, like painting and repairing. He cited Jackson Street as an example of this.

Housing. "The problem in housing is the demand for apartments," Mr. Patterson said, "but the people who need them most don't get them because builders put up expensive apartments people cannot afford."

He said that he considered the possibility of a revised zoning law which would permit the conversion of big old houses into apartments, but came to the conclusion that this would only produce run-down areas.

"You convert a house to a two-family dwelling, and 10 years later, its a rooming house," he said. "Converting is only a temporary answer, and I'm sure what the permanent one is."

In regard to public housing, Mr. Patterson said he thought that Princeton should be concerned about the problems of elderly persons and that the Borough should find some housing solutions for them within the community. Aside from this aspect of the situation, he said he believed Princeton had enough public housing.

Consolidation. "I would not favor consolidation at the present time," Mr. Patterson said. "The Borough wouldn't get enough advantages to offset the obvious increase in taxes. This might not always be true, however."

"I feel very strongly that the Borough and the Township must cooperate, not in words, but in concrete ways," he added.

He mentioned the need for cooperation in obtaining money and land for a new library; the need for cooperation with other municipalities on roads and the need for a decision in the Borough on recreation.

"The two Planning Boards should meet together more regularly," he said, "and Borough Council and Township Committee should meet together more often than just in budget sessions."

Report from the Mayor. Mr. Patterson said that he did not plan to prepare weekly reports, as his predecessor Raymond F. Male has done.

"If important things are going on in the Borough, the press will keep people informed," he said.

The new Republican mayor will take office at noon January 1. Since November 13, when he had his first conversation with Robert Mooney, Borough clerk, Mr. Patterson has been introducing himself to Borough officials, learning the mechanism of government and working with permanent employees to effect an easy transition of administration.

"I thought there would be nothing to do in this interval," he said, "but I've attended two Library Board meetings, two meetings of Borough Council and two agenda meetings and a meeting of the Planning Board."

The mayor-elect has also inspected the sewer plant and the Borough garage and has held conversations with Arthur Brokaw, Borough engineer and with Mr. McHugh, Borough Planner.

He has met with all department heads, listened to their problems and reassured appointive officials that they will be retained by the new administration.

Preliminary budget work has begun, and when the New Year comes, the new administration will be prepared to move into office.

ROUND-UP

Four days (Saturday through Tuesday) without a ray of sunshine, some ice (including an inch or so on the lake, but nowhere near enough for skating) . . . subfreezing temperatures — all the way down to 6 on Saturday . . . no reading higher than 32 from Thursday through Sunday . . . better than an inch and a half of rain, some of which froze to cause minor accidents.

Nothing Christmas-like about the weather, but the stores were crowded on the worst days, with many merchants reporting extremely brisk sales . . . weekend weather was expected to be cold and generally clear, but the long-range forecast did contain a hint of snow.

Weekend ice caused accidents on Mercer Street and The Great Road . . . in the first, at midnight Saturday, Anthony Panicaro, 50, 33 Wilton Street, skidded as he approached the hill on Mercer leading into town, struck an electric light pole, knocking down live wires . . . he required nine stitches at Princeton Hospital to close cuts on his forehead.

On The Great Road Monday morning Mrs. Petterson Marzoni, 43, Drakes Corner Road, skidded on ice, striking the bridge just north of the intersection of Mountain Avenue . . . no injuries to her, but considerable damage to car and bridge.

A three-car accident occurred last week at the intersection of State Road 206 and Ewing . . . Henry Drake, Jr., 25, of Skillman, was listed by Township police as having started the chain reaction . . . no injuries, but one more crack-up at Princeton's most accident-prone location . . . In a different type accident, Bohert Quick, 21, 239 Mather Avenue, Penns Neck, fell out of a tree he had climbed better to spot deer while hunting, was taken to Princeton Hospital with a possible fractured leg.

Alexander Street was the scene of two minor fires last week . . . one, at the Grove Lumber Co., was small enough to be extinguished by Township police . . . the other, at 7:40 Saturday night, resulted in a general alarm as bedding in a third floor room of the employees' dormitory at the Princeton Inn caught fire.

Two burglaries were reported last week . . . the second, floor office of The Bait, 82 Nassau Street, had $208.66 taken from three cash boxes . . . no sign of forced entry . . . the Midway Tavern at 68 Witherspoon was broken into through a window in the back door, $145 in cash and an unspecified amount of beer was removed.

John H. Nostrand, 3d, 26, Plainsboro Road, struck a Public Service pole on Harrison Street near Patton Avenue early Saturday morning when he lost control of the car trying to avoid another driving south on the street . . . he suffered abrasions of both knees and had his chest X-rayed at Princeton Hospital.

A University graduate student, Craig T. Bowman, who lives at 14 Euclid Avenue, Kingston, was found unconscious early Sunday morning on the floor of his car parked near Pyne Hall on College Road . . . he had suffered a severe blow on the head and was admitted to Princeton Hospital for a possible skull fracture, but was unable to tell police how it might have happened . . . police quoted him as saying he had been at a party on the University campus and that he remembers nothing after getting into his car.

Cary T. Kammler

A friend was talking about Christmas, how it is celebrated in every free country of the world, with slightly varying customs, but that basically it is a time which generates peace in men of good will wherever they are.

How right he is . . . it has often been the cause of a truce between bitter foes on the battlefield, as though man were pausing in his destruction to acknowledge that he sees, darkly, as through a glass, that other men, somehow, are not really his enemy. But he tells himself he can't figure it out, that for other than this brief Christmas time, he can't improve the situation.

Our friend said that perhaps nations, or even groups, cannot find the answers; that they can be found only by each individual by himself, and that a starting point is in the way he relates himself to all other individuals and to God. We read something that might help up keep such an idea in mind; it's a thought worth repeating quite frequently, silently to ourselves: "Be kind, for everyone you meet is fighting a hard battle."

It's a thought worth thinking about. A permanent spirit of good will, given out all year long, cannot get back anything but more good will, ever growing, and enduring as long as the giving lasts, which can be a whole lifetime. How true it is, that it is better to give than to receive! Kammler Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport. WA 1-2222.

MACHINES TO TEACH?

Possibility in Borough. Students in Princeton Borough elementary schools may be learning arithmetic from teaching machines next year, if a project authorized at the Tuesday night meeting of the Borough Board of Education comes to a favorable conclusion.

The board authorized Dr. Chester R. Stroup, superintendent of schools, to explore the possibility of acquiring some of these machines on an experimental basis, with the idea of trying them out in Nassau and Witherspoon Street Schools. Dr. Stroup plans to consult with a non-profit foundation in New York which sponsors such machines, and with Princeton University, which is already using teaching machines.

The board's action came following a detailed report by Dr. Stroup on the pros and cons of using teaching machines. The main advantage of the machines, he said, is that they can be used to teach the basic facts of such subjects as mathematics, sciences and languages, thus giving teachers more time for the creative aspects of teaching.

Dr. Stroup described a teaching machine as being about the size and shape of a typewriter, with a window on top through which the student sees a question, a slate on which to write the answer, and a lever to pull in order to learn whether or not he is correct. Price range of the machines, he said, is from $100 to $5,000.

Advantages Cited. Other advantages of the machines, he said, besides freeing the teacher for other work, include the fact that they keep up with the pace of the student; they give the correct answer immediately, preventing false conclusions, and they relieve pressure on the student by enabling him to compete with himself instead of with other students.

Dr. Stroup added that the value of machines in general has been proven through the use of other types of equipment, such as film strips and tape recorders. As an example, he cited the language laboratory installed last year at Princeton High School, where students listen to and make tape recordings in foreign languages.

A group of 34 Princeton High School students who had studied in the language laboratory took the College Board listening comprehension tests in foreign languages last year, he said. Of these, 17, or one-half, received a score of 800, the highest mark possible, and the others scored in the high 700s. These scores, he pointed out, were considerably higher than those made in previous years.

Main disadvantage of the teaching machines, besides the expense, Dr. Stroup said, is that the content, or programming, has to be done professionally and cannot be done by the individual teacher. "We don't know whether these machines can teach better than books," he said, "but we certainly ought to try and find out."

Vote of Thanks. In other action, the Board of Education expressed its appreciation to Mayor Male and the Princeton Borough Council for their interest in the problem of financing the proposed trip to Seattle by the Princeton High School Choir. The project was abandoned when the date of the invitation was switched from August to May. The board also voted thanks to the press for help in publicizing the proposed trip.

It was announced that the choir would appear this Saturday from 1 to 1:30 p.m. on Channel 4, WNBC-TV. The program is one sponsored by the New Jersey Education Association.

The resignation of Mrs. Jane T. Garrett, English teacher at Princeton High School, was accepted with regret. Mrs. Garrett resigned because of illness. A permanent replacement for her is expected to be appointed in January.

It was announced that the cafeteria has made a profit to date of $1,352.71, as compared with a steady loss in previous years. This is the first year that Princeton Borough schools have participated in the National School Lunch Program.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM SET

On Palmer Square. The traditional Christmas Eve carols and visit from Santa Claus will again be sponsored this year by Palmer Square Inc. and the Lions Club. At 6, the High School Choir will sing special Christmas material, and there will community carolling as well.

Prior to the outdoor portion of the program, at 5:30, children may attend a showing of cartoons at the Playhouse free of charge. Candy canes will be distributed at the conclusion of the show.

Santa Claus will make his annual appearance following the carols. He reminds his friends to place their letters in the special mailbox of the Nassau Inn lawn by Thursday, so that he will receive them by Sunday.

THROWN FROM CAR

In Route One Mishap. Stephen J. Hogarty, 22, 15 Chestnut, suffered a severe concussion Monday afternoon when he was thrown from his car after a two-car collision at the Penns Neck traffic circle. He is in fair condition in Princeton Hospital.

According to State Police, the red light facing north-south on Route One had jammad and a trooper had gone to the intersection to operate the yellow blinker manually.

A panel truck driven by Charles A. Soranno of East Orange, was going north on Route One at about 40-45 miles an hour. Mr. Soranno was apparently confused by the flashing yellow blinker. As he approached the intersection, he saw Mr. Hogarty coming out of Washington Road onto Route One, attempted to stop but slid on the rainy pavement and collided with Mr. Hogarty.

He struck the left side of the Hogarty car, spinning it around. The impact threw Mr. Hogarty out of the car and TOWN TOPICS, Dec. 20, 1951: Township residents paying a fee to use the Borough's Public Library hoped that their municipality would contribute some $4500 to the building's maintenance and services, thus eliminating payment by the non-Borough resident wishing to make use of its books . . . a 9000-word revision of the Borough's zoning ordinance was being readied for public hearing, with changes affecting primarily the east Nassau Street area.

"Scrooge's Christmas" was being planned by Witherspoon School pupils . . . the cast included John Harbison, Raymond Ridgeway, Thomas Shope, Robert Sorenson, Pat Hutton, Neil Volweider, Anita Gordon, Susan Drury, Lorita Alford and Betty Craven, with Mrs. Harriet Peterson directing.

TOWN TOPICS said: "Foresight . . . strength . . . faith, these are the symbols of Christmas, 1951, and the foundations on which a world of peace may yet arise."

onto the pavement, which he struck with his head.

The trooper manning the blinker administered emergency first aid, and Mr. Hogarty was taken to Princeton Hospital by the First Aid and Rescue Squad.

Both Mr. Hogarty and Mr. Soranno were issued summons by State Police, Mr. Soranno for careless driving and Mr. Hogarty for failure to yield the right-of-way.

STUDENT FINED

For Speeding. Kenneth M. Buerk, 19, of 336 Folke Hall, Princeton University, was fined $20 by Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr. Monday for speeding. Mr. Buerk was fined an additional $15 as an unlicensed driver. He pleaded guilty to both offenses.

Amasa S Bishop, 41, of 1004 Princeton Pike, paid a $15 fine for driving an unregistered vehicle. He pleaded guilty.

IT'S PARTY TIME

In Hageman Homes. Children and adults who live in the Hageman Homes on Clay Street and in the Franklin and Maple Terrace apartments will hold two Christmas parties Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the Borough Housing Authority.

Children will gather from 2 to 4 Friday at 50 Clay Street to have a party and to accept gifts of candy and cookies made by housewives who live in the housing projects.

Saturday, from 7 to 10 p.m. adults will dance to records in the Odd Fellows Hall. There will be turkey, cake, cookies, pie and punch, prepared by Mrs. Carolyn Adams and a committee of women.

At the parties, the Housing Authority will announce the "Boy and Girl of the Year"—the two teen-age residents of the project who have done the most to help the administrative staff.

Selection will be based on the help given by the winners in keeping the grounds clean and well cared-for, either on a voluntary basis or "whenever asked."

This is the first such party to be given by the Authority for its tenants. The Authority has supplied the turkey and the punch, but residents have baked the cakes, cookies and pies and have roasted the turkeys.

"MANSGROVE" POSTPONED

Hearing Put Off. The fifth hearing in the "Mansgrove Gardens" case, scheduled for this Thursday in Township Hall, has been postponed Joseph Shinn, Zoning Officer, announced that a new date for the hearing would be set shortly.

The postponement was decided on because the regular Zoning agenda grew to such proportions that the Thursday meeting, with "Mansgrove," would have been inordinately long, Mr. Shinn said.

On the agenda are a request by Saverio Mangone, 40 Jefferson Road, for permission to operate a car-wash on Route 206 near Nini Plymouth; a request by Dorset Princeton Research Center on Alexander Street to expand its present activities from the production of semi-conductor devices to research and development work on microwave attennae and the enlargement of its staff from 15 to 50.

Contrasting Christmases

Christmas last year
Shone out white,
With snow and ice
And glowing light.
If Christmas this year
Looks quite grey,
At least it needn't
Be shovelled away.

— D. WARF

The December forecast for "mild" weather has proved fortunate in one sense: it may have been unusually wet, but all that rain (nearly two inches in the past week) would have meant a great deal of snow and ice had it been ten degrees colder.

The Man hasn't completely ruled out the chances for a White Christmas. Precipitation is due this weekend, and it could be snow—not a great deal, but white, anyway. Temperatures below normal for the next few days.

One prediction he guaranteed. A Merry Christmas for all!

BECKETT AT MCCARTER: Ruth White, star of "Happy Days," a new play by Samuel Beckett, is half buried in the mound which serves as her "environment." The play will be presented on Friday, January 12, in McCarter Theatre. "Happy Days" has concluded a successful run at the off-Broadway Cherry Lane Theatre.

News Of The THEATRES

JANUARY BUSY .

At McCarter. Musicals, off-Broadway avant garde productions and a dance company are included in the January schedule of events planned by McCarter Theatre.

The first offering will be Samuel Beckett's latest success, "Happy Days," starring Ruth White as an indomitable woman who spends the course of the play buried up to her waist in an ant-hill. The play, by the author of "Waiting for Godot" and "Endgame," will be given by the off-Broadway cast on Friday, January 12.

The following night, January 13, the Jean de Rigault theatre company of Paris will present, in French, Jean-Paul Sartre's "Huit-Clos" ("No Exit") and Eugene Ionesco's "La Cantatrice Chauve" ("The Bald Soprano.") This one-night stand will launch the French troupe on a ten-week, coast-to-coast tour of colleges and universities.

And More to Come. On Wednesday, January 17, the American Ballet Theatre will open McCarter Theatre's series of programs on the dance.

On Friday, January 19, the French star, Genevieve, will come to McCarter with her new show, "From Paris with Love," a musical which will be given its premiere in McCarter before starting out on a national tour.

Julian Bream, the British classical guitarist and lute player, will appear on Sunday afternoon, January 21 at 3, and on Friday, January 26, the Carmen de Lavallade—Alvin Ailey Negro Dance Company will perform.

Tickets for all events are on sale at the McCarter box-office and at Male's Book Shop, 203 Nassau.

BAWDY 'WIFE' OPENS

In Murray Theatre. The Princeton Community Players' production of William Wycherly's "The Country Wife" last week was an attempt to breathe new life into a seventeenth-century English bedroom comedy. It was a performance marked with the common flaws of amateur theatre, but with occasional high points.

The acting was, on the whole, fairly competent. Kate Lever portrayed Margery Pinchwife, the title role, with a usually lively attitude, especially with her self-satisfied smirk on learning that she had finally mastered the city trait of telling lies. Mimi Parascheles, as Lady Fidgit, carried off her "woman of quality" with satirical dignity.

Garrison Ellis played the comic role of Mr. Sparkish to the hilt, exploiting his one expression to the utmost. Frances Keene was his fiancee who tried to keep him from making a cuckold of himself in spite of himself. She failed brilliantly. Also impressive (and cute) was Christine Westwood as a mincing (she minces beautifully) British maid.

Unfortunately, "Wife" had a dearth of action, combined with a rapidity of delivery that made many scenes unintelligible. Judicious editing of the text (especially some of the horribly repetitious asides in Act III) might have produced a faster moving play.

Probably the major problem was in that text itself. "The Country Wife" is a prime example of Restoration comedy (which is to say, unfortunate comedy). It led to the death of English theatre for nearly 200 years. Any production of such comedy today only tends to point up this fact.

Perhaps another problem is that of a "studied seriousness" of amateur theatrics. The performers are too intent upon technical perfection (lines, manners, expressions, etc.) that they impart a forced and stilted quality to their actions.

As far as staging, George Furnish provided an effective purple backdrop, and the seventeenth century costuming was a bright, colorful contrast. In all, the Community Players gave an adequate performance to a bawdy, period comedy which we feel is extremely difficult to produce in this day and age.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Bridge to the Sun (December 20-26) is the true story of an American girl who marries a Japanese diplomat before Pearl Harbor and then elects to spend the war in exile with her husband in Japan. It is interesting in that it may be the first American picture to give a partially sympathetic treatment of the Japanese during the war.

Carroll Baker plays the Tennessee-born girl who marries James Shigeta Her problems of adjustment in the male-dominated society of Japan provide the most realistic elements of the film. Unfortunately, when the war starts, it's difficult to tell truth from pure melodrama, as Shigeta (a "good guy") associates himself with an underground peace movement and constantly ducks secret police.

This seems to be the year of sentimentality in the movies and the ending of "Bridge" is no exception However, the fact that it is fact makes it somewhat more palatable. Filmed in Japan and Washington, from an "autobiographical novel" by Gwen Terasaki. Rating: adequate handling of the traditional East-West theme.

Pocketful of Miracles (December 27-January 2) is Frank Capra's 1961 re-make up his own 1933 sentimental comedy "Lady for a Day." Based on a Damon Runyon story, "Pocketful" boasts a superb, hand-picked cast which includes Bette Davis, Glenn Ford, Hope Lange and a host of Hollywood's top character actors.

The story concerns a beggar, Apple Annie (Miss Davis in a wonderful role), who is set up as a rich society woman for a week by gang-leader and bootlegger, Dave the Dude (Ford) to fool her daughter (Ann-Margaret) who is returning from a convent. The situations that arise are typical (that is to say, hilarious) Runyon. The high point occurs when the Dude and his moll (Miss Lange) try to instruct the hoodlums how to impersonate society folk Capra, an old master at the sentimental comedy evokes heart-warming and laugh-getting performances from Miss Davis and Ford, as well as from Peter Falk, Mickey Shaughnessy and Edward Everett Horton (as an impeccable butler) in minor roles. All in all, a happy holiday treat in wide screen and color Rating Runyon's guys and dolls in a happy setting.

THE GARDEN

The Cheaters (December 17-23) is a picture of French youth in the biting tradition of "La Dolce Vita." Marcel Carne directed the film from his own story with a sure hand and one has the feeling that it could almost be documentary, a form of pictorial journalism

The story line follows a young couple, Jacques Charrier (Brigitte Bardot's ex-husband) and Pascale Petit, who are very much in love and wish to cease all amoral living. As with most youth, however, they are also very confused and easily led into a corrupting life by a bullying blackmailer and a degraded aristocrat.

Paris is the background, but, as in "Paris Blues," it is not the "City of Light" but rather a metropolis in which life on all levels is being lived. Carne has caught a cross-section of confused young adults who are constantly cheating themselves of a valuable life In French, with English titles. Rating: a skillful look in the gutter.

Alakazam the Great (December 24-30) looks like a Walt Disney production stamped "Made in Japan." While the feature-length cartoon is reminiscent of Disney productions in many ways, the strong Oriental style of the drawing sets it apart, and the beautiful Japanese use of pigmentation is very pleasing and effective.

In story, the fairy-tale concerns Alakazam, a shy monkey, who passes the test of courage and becomes king of the animals. He becomes abusive in his power, however, and decides to challenge the right of humans to rule the world A great wizard, King Amo, subjects Alakazam to a weary pilgrimage in order to learn mercy, justice and understanding, and the story ends happily.

For American audiences, the voices of well-known performers such as Jonathan Winters, Arnold Stang and Dodie Stevens have been dubbed into the sound track. The voice of Frankie Avalon is used for the monkey, a brilliant piece of type-casting. Songs and musical background are provided by Les Baxter. Rating: fun for children.

ALL, SO, IT'S STILL TICKING: James Shigeta proves that his wrist watch, made in Japan, can still be subjected to terrible punishment in a scene from "Bridge to the Sun," continuing through Tuesday at the Playhouse. Carroll Baker stars as the American girl who marries a Japanese diplomat prior to World War II.

AUGUST WAS A HOT MONTH:
You see, we start buying our Christmas merchandise in August. Well, our buyer (he was fired last week) must have had a sunstroke—or at the very least, heat prostration. I mean some of the merchandise we've been unpacking is just unbelievable. Take that case of ashtrays for example. A thinking man couldn't even snuff out his filter in one The way they are so full of pine twigs, and pixies and cones and all—on both sides too. A lovely arrangement, perhaps—but as an ashtray—forget it! And talk of stupidity. Look at these brandy snifters. Filled like they are with santas and berries and cones. I say when a fellow wants to muddle a brandy he doesn't want all that jazz floating in it. Enough to make you give up the art. At our low prices, though, we might just move them $6.75 and $3.50 respectively.

ACCURACY, LETS HAVE ACCURACY We advertised last week that we had 500 permanent arrangements on display. Well, some 43 people were observed counting them last Saturday, and of these 8 point out that only 479 were actually in view.

Was this not thoughtful? Well, of course we did sell some since last count, but we promise to be more accurate in the future. Priced $1.00 to $30.00.

TWIST ANYONE? "It's better to light one little candle, than to curse the dark" as the saying goes. Of course, we are a little prejudiced as to whose candles you light and helpfully suggest our Colonial Candle line. We have pillars, tapers, spirolites, handdipts, and twist (now there is a popular name) and — well, heck we are on a budget and can't list them all— but we HAVE them all. Any you have ever heard of.

IT'S NEW To Us

AND A SPARKLE TO ALL

For Holiday Joy. The most joyous way to begin the most joyous day of the year is to open a split of champagne on Christmas morning. The suggestion comes from Varsity Liquors, and we think it's the best kind of Christmas morning toast.

Varsity goes on to recommend the Henkell Trocken wodden box decorated with grape leaves and filled with six splits of champagne. Wine and Game, Princeton Junction Package Store, Cousins, Yeoman's and Pink Elephant, too, but only Varsity suggests the "pop" on Christmas morning.

Pink Elephant's favorite champagne is the Taittinger Blanc de Blancs, '53, at $12.60, closely followed by Moet et Chandon's Dom Perignon '52 at $12.45. Bollinger packs two to a box, or presents you with a magnum in a wooden crate.

Yeoman's invites you to share Paul Masson's pink champagne with two glasses, or sparkling wine with glasses. Varsity's champagnes start at $2.99 and go up to $12.45. There's a Perrier-Jouet '52, which Mrs. Kennedy was served in France.

Cousins imports a group of '59 wines from Germany (personally imported, and therefore less expensive). There are 21 of these to choose from for Christmas dinner.

Claridge serves wine with dinner, too, specializing in red wines that are in limited supply. Hospices de Beaune and Nuits St. George are the favorites here.

Wine and Game has Bordeaux and Burgundies, too, and Princeton Junction Package has a wide choice in domestic wines and champagnes.

!!! The tallest drink in town comes in a chest-high bottle. It's good red Italian wine in a bottle with standard-size base and a giraffe neck that comes all the way up to here—about three feet, actually. Pink Elephant.

Cousins has Castagna Valpolicella in a big fiasco wrapped in woven straw: a gallon for $6.49, and splendid to use as a lamp base after the party.

The Japanese House of Koshu exports a collection of unusual liqueuers in unusual containers. We've already told you about the green tea. Now we introduce you to something called Su-Mi-Re, a piercing purple — well, fluid, is the only word we can think of. Looks like ink, actually, not like a thick liqueur, and is made of something totally exotic which doesn't even appear on the label unless all that Japanese tells you what it is.

Pour it over ice-cream, they say, or even drink it. Comes in a very tall glass decanter with a Kokeishi doll's head for a cap. At her throat is a pearl. The pearl pulls out on a string, a stick is inserted down the throat, and in this way you pour. At Pink Elephant, Wine and Game and Varsity.

Japan, Mexico. Other rarities in the Koshu group include a blackberry liqueur in a geisha doll decanter or porclain, creme de cacao in a bottle formed like a mask.

Pink Elephant has Trader Vic's Mai Tai Joe, 6-year-old Martinique Rum in a square-nosed Easter Island sort of container; creme de cacao in a brown elephant, smooth and stylized and so deftly made that you'd swear he was carved from walnut; creme de menthe in a 15-inch "wooden" giraffe from the some general family and creme de menthe also in a "wood"-framed modern picture which is nice and square and made to be hung on a wall (99 bottles hanging on the wall . . .)

Varsity pours Kahlua, the coffee-flavored Mexican liquor into a stone figurine. A heavy stoneware decanter is a theatrical mask with creme de menthe in the "happy" side and creme de cacao in the "sad" side.

When they take a sip of Scotch at Wine and Game, it

Tea, 50 Proof

When you invite your great-aunt for a holiday cup of tea by the open fire, pour her a slug of green tea liqueur and watch the old girl mellow away into the steam.

Japanese Green Tea Liqueur is a 50-proof beverage unlike anything you ever steeped from a tea bag. You pour an ounce of it into a tea-cup and then fill the cup with hot water. In summer, you pour the whole thing over crushed ice, making the most delirious glass of iced-tea you ever drank.

Pink Elephant, Wine and Game and Varsity Liquors are the tea houses. The decanter is a handsome one of gold and black, $8.50.

comes from the 12-year-old SPEY bottle with a dancing Scot inside. Gold Menthe has a ballerina inside. She's Bols.

And Old Grandad. Liard's Applejack at Wine and Game is in a ruby decanter and Bisehoff brandy is in a snaky, modern piece of sculpture with a big hole in the middle like Henry Moore. Pour here.

At Cousins, they take Old GrandDad on a rocker: a full gallon. Harper bourbon's etched decanter is nice, and so is the Old Fitzgerald one with embossed gold design.

Beam has decided to stretch the years, and you'll find when you buy, that everything is now in months. Think how impressive to serve Gold 146: Beam's 146-month old bourbon. Let your guests do the arithmetic to find out how old it really is.

Younger Beams are 110 months old. This is a game that fascinates us, by the way. Suppose you had a glass of Napoleon brandy 140 years old. It would be well over a thousand months.

These Beams come in elaborate pitchers, by the way. The 146-month one can be carried on your shoulder, just as the lassies used to when they went to the well. (For bourbon?)

At Wine and Game, the conversation piece is a little sweater knit here in Princeton for bottles that might otherwise get cold in the wintertime. Sweaters are shaped like poodles, with rhinestone eyes, red noses and a red bow. They are brown, black, white or grey for $6.

For stocking stuffers, Wine and Game suggests eight-ounce bottles of Bols Cordials in sapphire curacao, red creme de noyaux (to make a "pink squirrel"), orange curacao, green and white creme de menthe and white and brown creme de cacao. Whoops! (but not for Christmas morning.)

At the last minute . . Portofino's six wines in a box with hand-painted Italian waterfront scene on the top . Paul Masson's Connoisseur selection which enables you to "dial your wine" (If you are a true connoisseur you don't need the dial.) . . .

Chocolate or Hard. Russell Stover is a regular member of the family at Thorne's, where the 1½-pound box at $2.25 goes like chocolate on a hot day. Little Ambassadors are small and succulent in their Christmas boxes. Look at the box with a red foil cover and Santa on the outside. Buy a plastic boot with lollypops in the top.

Stover also makes pastels and caramels, fruit-flavored jellies and rosebud mints for people who prefer these to the traditional chocolate. Pecan delights by Stover are a delight for any Christmas present, as you know.

Candy Cupboard is another favorite in the Thorne cupboard, and so is Tobler. The Swiss house is now distributed by Schrafft's, which means that you will find it in any fine Princeton store that carries candy.

Tobler assortments contain such delectables as Milch-Schokolade, Noisetta Zrtbitter and the like. There are boxes of little one-bite chocolate, individually wrapped, and boxes of assortments. At Thorne's Forer's Pharmacy, Louise Maas, the Nassau Delicatessen.

Rosemarie de Paris is exclusive at Louise Maas, and you may jot down on your cuff a note on the Christmas, 1961, economy: there are no more $5-a-pound chocolates at Louise Maas. All sold. Long ago. Others are still available, however, including the pound-and-a-half hatbox for $5.

Hills of Westchester, a comparative newcomer to Miss Maas, has petit fours, rum cakes and coconut macaroons in a three-drawer case, five inches tall. Germany sends a similar piece of furniture, this one a cupboard called Chocolate Wonderland, made in Cologne and stocked with foil-wrapped chocolate bottles.

On the novelty shelf, always a delight at the Maas shop, there are gold cornucopias, rocking horses, suitcases full of goodies, all foil-wrapped and eager for a stocking to stuff.

Dates, orange peel, marzipan vegetables and popcorn balls will satisfy the palate of people who don't like candy. And for those of you who like to buy in bulk, Louise Maas has sandwich mints in Christmas colors: red and chocolate or white and chocolate, $1.50 a pound.

Mint in Your Mouth. Gene Seal offers Princeton's Black Lantern candy, in chocolates or the traditional Christmas mints. It's late to place your order early, but you should let Gene Seal know what your requirements are.

The Del. passes around the box of Christmas Stollen and the Lindt chocolates, ranging from $1 to $15 a box. There is imported marzipan here and glaced fruits in mixed or homogeneous assortment. Try one of the little sugared orange-peel dises from Italy.

"A Blessed Christmas"

The traditional wish for a blessed Christmas to all, comes with a cake from Dresden called "Baumkuchen Christstollen Bitter-Marzipan Lebkuchen."

Baked from an old recipe said to have been formulated in 1400, this soft-textured cake stands about six inches high, with a tree-like appearance and a glazed frosting. Truly a baker's masterpiece.

Gourmet has it, one pound, boxed, for $4.25, from the bakeries of Kreutzkamm.

I WANT A ROBOT COMMANDO and a train and a ball and a . . . but let Mark Lawrence (left) Martha Sullivan and Fred Hilliard tell you what they want for Christmas. They and their first-grade classmates had no trouble—with the exception of one boy who just couldn't think—in listing what they would like to find under the tree on Monday. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: What do you want for Christmas?

Where asked: First grade class of Mrs. Ruth Griffiths, Nassau Street School.

Susan Jeffay, 42 Princeton Avenue: I want a doll house and one of those little bitty toy villages and just a few other things. I don't want much because I have a lot of things at home.

John Montgomery, 55 Westcott Road: I want an Erector set with a motor and a holster with a gun and I want a Three Keys to Treasure game, and I want a bridge and turnpike building set and I want a Mattel Shooting Shell Rifle with toy bullets and I want a puzzle. Oh, and I forgot: A Johnny Reb Cannon.

Cornelia Lively, 39 University Place: I want any kind of a dodll. Nothing else.

Douglas Rich, 30 Jefferson Road: I don't know: I just can't think.

Mark Lawrence, 177 Library Place: I want a train by Lionel and, let's see, a bomber airplane and then another airplane and, let's see, I want a Raggedy Andy doll for a boy and . . . these are the things I mostly want. I want an ice cream truck and a machine that makes snow balls; let's see. I don't know if I want anything else. I like mostly to get surprises.

Martha Sullivan, 400 Nassau Street: I want a snow cone machine and a Thumbelina and a Tiny Tears and a surprise. And a pair of jumping shoes and a puzzle. And, oh yeah, a ball. Nothing else.

Fred Hilliard, 13 Bank Street: I want a kitty, a robot commando, a Blue and Grey Battle set and a Remco bulldozer, and a cannon that shoots cannon balls and a board with a bridge and train on it. And a rocket car for the train and a satellite car for the train and a giraffe car— the one where the heads go up and down—and I'll have a cowboy car that shoots the men and I'll have the fish car that carries fish—not real fish—and I'll have the money car that carries money and I'll have . . . that's all.

Leslie Dunlop, 15 Madison Street: I want a doll, its name is Kissy; I want a doll named Tiney Tears; I want a doll, Thumbelina and I want a stuffed bear, and I want a puzzle, and I want a doll dream house, and . . . ah, and a baby carriage and a candlelight and a set of nail polish and a set of lipstick. And I want books, and I want blocks to build a house, and I want a numbers game (at this juncture a classmate said, "Leslie, you want a thousand things) and I want a Raggedy Ann doll and I want a stuffed Santa Claus. That's all.

Edgar Waterman, 16 Hunter Road: I would like a train and a two-wheeler with training wheels and a car—you know those buggys you have, those kind of things that are called convertibles and you can take down the top—and I would like a toy gas station and nothing else.

Daphne Buckland, 36 Stanley Avenue: A bride doll, Kissy, and a stuffed dog. Nothing else.

Amy Spreeher, 145 N. Harrison Street: A hair dresser doll, an ice-cream mixer, roller skates and a bride doll That's all.

Edward Beagles, 27 Clay Street: I want a scientist set and I want Garloo, and I want a bop toy guo by Remco and an army suit, and a football set and a foothall suit and cowboy guns and a cowboy suit and a Dick Tracy suit and a Dick Tracy gun, That's all.

Karen Blair, 146 Hodge Road: A Barbie Doll, a book, pencils, a puzzle, nothing else.

Larry Kahn, 40 Wiggins Street: Knight Armour and a sword with it and flash cards and a snow cone machine and a tanker and a model of a tiger that you can work with controls and a model of Johnny Reb with a horse, and that's all.

Helen Szathmary, 41 University Place: I want a bride doll, and some kind of clay that you print names on—it's called Silly Putty—and I can't thing of anything else because Mom is going to buy the rest of the things I want.

Andrew Bonner, 148 Mercer Street: A robot commando and I think I'll have a pair of roller skates and I think that's all.

Faith Brown, 23 Quarry Street: I want a puzzle and a doll house and a bell and a Chatty Kathy and a pad that you write on, pencils, and a block. And I want a hat.

Samuel Scott, 178 Stockton Street: I want a Blue and Grey battle set and a skeet gun game where you push a little pedal and the gun fires and you try and hit it, and I want the Johnny Reb Cannon and the wagon and a toy airplane and that's all.

Laure Caponya, 21 Moran Avenue: I want a pair of ice skates, and roller skates, and a bicycle and a big ball. That's all.

Cuyler Matthews, 85 Moore Street: A sled, a stocking filled with toys and a model of a boat and a robot.

Report from THE MAYOR

Merry Christmas! Last Friday afternoon the Mayor was privileged to take part in the brief ceremony of lighting what has become the "community" Christmas tree in Palmer Square.

Again it is Christmas in Princeton. It is a very special time in this very special place. To one and all the Mayor extends a hearty greeting.

Personally and on behalf of the community, I should like also to thank the members of the Borough staff and all those who serve on the many boards and committees that are part of the official family of the Borough. Their dedicated service is vital to the welfare of our town and Christmas is a day and a spirit and a time of gladness when we should remember the year-round thoughtfulness of these men and women who have chosen to serve us in these public posts.

Special Meeting. Mayor and Council will meet in special session on Wednesday, December 27, at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall. The agenda should be much lighter than that facing Council in last Tuesday's deliberations.

Major items on the list will be a public hearing on two ordinances which will amend the traffic and parking and the parking meter ordinances. The purpose is to provide for temporary metering of the first portion of the so-called Tulane West yard. The Borough will thus put to use the former Lamplighter property acquired earlier this year.

TRADITIONAL SIGN: The lights on Palmer Square's Christmas tree were turned on Friday by Mayor Raymond F. Male, and Princeton residents will gather there Sunday for the annual program of carols and the visit from Santa Claus. For details, see Tapics of the Town. (Staff Photo)

Negotiations will continue in furtherance of the plan to provide substantial interior block parking in the Nassau-Tulane-Spring-Witherspoon section. The special session of Council will probably handle some routine year-end business items to close out the books for 1961.

Junior Museum. Chairman John R Martin of the Princeton Junior Museum Committee has written to thank Mayor and Council for arranging for the temporary use of third floor Borough Hall space. Work will now begin on the establishment of a museum and workshop in the arts and sciences for all the children of the Princeton community. This should prove to be a valuable service and another exciting resource.

"Tell It To The Mayor!" The regular weekly open house session will be held on Friday, December 22, and on Friday, December 29, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

These two sessions will complete four years of such weekly meetings during which more than 3,500 men, women and children dropped by during more than 200 evenings to ask questions or to express their views about problems of local concern. At last week's open house, the view was again expressed that Princeton might develop a "Pride in Princeton" committee which would encourage neatness in our physical surroundings, much as Operation Nassau has sought to encourage interest in the buildings.

Princeton University seniors—Robert H. Bolton, Jr. of Alexandria, La., and Robert B. Partridge, Jr. son of an Army officer stationed overseas—and Michael R. Schefrin of Milwaukee, a graduate of the Class of 1960 have been elected Rhodes Scholars. The announcement increases the number of Princetonians who have achieved this distinction to 103.

Mr. Schefrin, now in his second year at Harvard Medical School, plans to be a psychiatrist and will interrupt his medical work to study philosophy at Oxford. A member of the Department of Philosophy, Mr. Bolton expects to teach philosophy. Mr. Partridge has been studying astrophysics.

Established by Cecil Rhodes, the scholarships provide money for two years of study in a field of the recipient's choice at Oxford University.

Westminster Performance. Harold C. Schonberg, music critic for the New York Times, and Louis Biancolli, critic for the New York World-Telegram, applauded the Westminster Choir's performance of Lukas Foss' "Parable of Death" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony held at Carnegie Hall last week.

Mr. Schonberg wrote that the conductor, the soloist and the Choir "sounded thoroughly convincing in this score." (Parable of Death) "A . . . gusto of spirit seized. . . the Westminster Choir . . . "said Mr. Biancolli in describing the performance.

With the inclusion of last week's four concerts, Westminster choirs have sung 147 performances with the New York Philharmonic under the direction of 14 different conductors since 1939.

BELLS RING OUT

At Second Presbyterian. Christmas has a special sound at Second Presbyterian Church —the joyous sound of bells, rung by the church's own Memorial Handbell Choir. The bell choir will give a Christmas concert this Sunday at 3.45 p.m., just before the 4 p.m. Christmas Eve candlelight service.

Organized only a little over a year ago, the bell choir has been making an average of four or five appearances a year. It performed at the recent installation of the church's new minister, the Rev. F. Hugh Liffiton, and accompanied the carol singing at the Christmas meeting of the Women's Guild earlier this month.

Founder and director of the bell choir is Mrs. Kenneth R. Wight of 21 Royal Oak Road, Lawrenceville. A student of sacred music, Mrs. Wight was graduated from Westminster Choir College in 1951 and continued her studies at Union Theological Seminary in New York, graduating in 1953 with a degree of master of sacred music.

"I majored in organ, but I've always been interested in bells, too," Mrs. Wight said. "While I was at Union I collected all the material on handbell choirs that I could find, hoping that someday I could work with one. There's such a joyous quality about the sound of bells—I feel it can make a significant contribution to Christian worship."

Started in 1960. Early in 1960 Mrs. Wight suggested the idea of a bell choir to the minister of Second Presbyterian, who at that time was the Rev. David L. Crawford. Mr. Crawford enthusiastically endorsed the idea, so a set of used bells was acquired and the group was officially organized in March, 1960.

"The members of the Women's Guild were interested right away," said Mrs. Wight. "I think they just liked the idea. Most of them didn't know what they were getting into!"

People don't realize how difficult it is to ring handbells until they try it, Mrs. Wight explained. "You don't simply pick up the bell and shake it," she said. "It's a controlled action, involving snapping the wrist at just the right moment. The bells are heavy, too. The weight ranges from nine ounces to more than four pounds!"

The bells, which are made especially for this purpose, also require a great deal of care. They have to be stored in flannel bags and, ideally, those who ring them should wear gloves, to prevent tarnish. "The bells are tuned so carefully that tarnish can affect the tone," Mrs. Wight said. "And polishing affects it, too!"

New Bells On Way. Now that the bell choir has become proficient at ringing, a new set of bells has been ordered. The new bells are coming from the Whitechapel Bell Foundry in London, one of the oldest bell foundries in the world. The bells take a long time to make, as each one is tuned by hand, and Second Presbyterian's new set is not expected until next Christmas.

"Each one is really a work of art," Mrs. Wight said. "Of course, this adds to the cost. Our new set, which will include 37 bells covering three chromatic octaves, will cost approximately $1,000. It is being financed by making each bell a memorial, with the name of the person memorialized inscribed on the neck of the bell." Cost of the bells ranges from $15 to $50, depending on the size, and the choir hopes to have the new set completely subscribed by next December.

Creation of the choir, Mrs. Wight feels, has also added to the fellowship of the church. "The group has really enjoyed working together," she said. "We rehearse once a week, and we still find it just as much fun as when we started."

Members of the bell choir are Mrs. Vernon Boushell, Mrs. N. L. Carnevale, Mrs. Henry S. Dyer, Mrs. Charles Hunt, Mrs. Gene Keller, Mrs. Judson Kurtz, Mrs. Donald Perkins, Mrs. James Rowan and Mrs. Carl W. Sweitzer. They and their families will get together this Saturday at Second Presbyterian for the bell choir's Christmas supper, which is fast becoming an annual tradition.

"The husbands and children especially enjoy the party," Mrs. Wight said, "because they get a chance to ring the bells. They all seem to like bells just as much as I do!"

HOLIDAY SCHEDULE SET

At Post Office. The Princeton Post Office will be open from 8 until 1 on Saturday. There will be no delivery, except special delivery parcels, on Sunday or Monday, Christmas Day.

The schedule was announced by Charles F. Murray, postmaster. He said regular delivery service will also be suspended on Sunday, December 31, and Monday, January 1. The lobby of the post office will remain open on these dates.

PARTY PLANNED

For New Year's Eve. Committees have been announced for the annual New Year's party of the Pine Brae Country Club. The affair will begin at 9 p.m.

Members of the committee in charge of arrangements are Mrs. Thomas Navin, Mrs. Donald Rice, Mrs. A. Morton Good and Mrs. Donavan Fagans. The John Coles Trio will provide music. John Francis of Canal House will be master of ceremonies.

Members of the decorating committee are Mrs. William Koch, Mrs. Robert O'Connor and Mrs. William Punnett.

WE DANES—AND YOU

HOLIDAYS

How we take our Holidays and how we recommend our Guests to do the same.

SUMMER PROPER in Denmark is short — only three months. The Danes enjoy it while it lasts, splashing around in the colossal amount of water which surrounds the country and provides lovely beaches nearly everywhere

When Danish youth has finished work it gets onto one of the two million bicycles in the country and rides out to the nearest beach to bathe Holidays proper are the same without the bicycle ride and with the whole day spent by the sea getting as brown (or is it red?) as a berry.

There are large hotels and small hotels and boarding houses at all seaside resorts There are also fishermen's tiny and primitive cottages which are eagerly rented by people who normally live in spaciousness and comfort with every practical convenience Hotels and boarding houses assume that the sea air and doing just nothing takes it out of people and that they must have good nourishing food to do it successfully. Slimming is therefore universal as soon as the holidays are over.

Apart from bathing and swimming one does absolutely nothing all day in the holidays —except to round off the evenings with dancing and such like.

HOSPITAL AID SHOP GETS SOME AID OF ITS OWN: Two Princeton High School seniors, Sherry Ridgeway of Plainsboro and Carolyn Randall of Princeton, are helping Princeton Hospital by taking orders from customers during weekends in the Hospital's busy Aid Shop. The girls volunteer their services on alternate Saturdays. Mrs. Otto E. Rosner, manager of the Shop, hopes that the Hospital's Junior Aide program will increase as teenagers learn of this new way of serving the hospital. Seated at right is Mrs. Douglas E. Stuart, the Hospital's Public Relations Director.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Since you received some indignant letters, I feel I must write to defend your music critic on Miss Sutherland. I did not think he was exceeding his rights as a critic and, personally, I agreed with his opinion, both of the program and of Miss Sutherland's abilities.

Your critic may be interested to know that she sang the same unsuitable and unimaginative program with the same last minute changes at her concert in New Brunswick the preceding week I was truly disappointed because advance publicity had led me to think I would have a pleasurable evening I'm glad your critic gave his honest opinion uninfluenced by her name and fame.

Golden Rule Ignored

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am constantly appalled by the complete indifference with which people still take possession of the metal carts at our shopping center, ignoring signs posted in the markets that this practice is not permitted One sees the carts being used for baby carriages and often abandoned at points many blocks away

Isn't this theft? Shouldn't these people be fined? The carts are costly and are often wrecked in the parking lots, besides causing a hazard to automobiles.

Then there are those who park their cars close to the buildings, ignoring the white lines, and often making it impossible for the regular traffic to squeeze through Anything for their own convenience—the devil with everyone else!

What shameful selfishness! And what a miserable example to set for our children and for the foreign-born in our midst! The motto seems to be "Grab" not "Give" just a little consideration to your fellow man, especially at this sacred season when Americans are supposed to be celebrating their so-called Christianity which after all, begins with the Golden Rule

UNICEF Drive Helped

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your readers will no doubt feel gratified to learn that in terms of the aid given to about 57 million needy children and mothers by the United Nations Children's Fund in more than 100 countries, the "treats" of coins they generously distributed to young UNICEF Trick or Treaters on Halloween can mean any of the following: A daily glass of milk for 30,151 children for one month BCG vaccine to protect 177,357 children from tuberculosis, insecticides to protect 14,189 children from malaria for one year, a daily vitamin capsule for 886,785 children suffering from malnutrition

By helping to make this possible, you and your staff well deserve the praise of the community you serve, and the gratitude of mothers and children in all parts of the world.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have received many tributes to my late wife, Mabel M. Reeves, from both individuals and organizations in Princeton I knew she did a very worthwhile job, but had no idea of the love and esteem in which she was held by Princetonians. I am proud to have had such a wife

I should like to express my thanks to the senders of all these letters through the medium of this letter to your paper.

Use the Peace Mailbox.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

During this season of peace, I wish to call to the attention of all Princetonians the silver Peace Mailbox just outside the post office All the letters in this box are going to one address — the United Nations, the writers all have one plea — peace through disarmament The story behind it is of interest.

Earlier this year, 27 year old writer, Roy Jacobsen, a recent alumnus of Dartmouth and Columbia, settled down in San Francisco, wishing for himself a long stretch of time in which to be creative. But as he contemplated the possibility of his future, it seemed to him that first things had to be done first

With the threat of global nuclear destruction, Roy felt he would better spend his time and energy removing the obstacle to his future, the possibility of war He believed that a letter-writing campaign by citizens in every country of the world, urging all governments of the world to work for peace by starting with disarmament, would be most effective

Starting in September with a few contributions from San Francisco friends, with a donated U-Haul trailer on top of which he built a huge country-type Peace Mailbox, he set out to collect the first 100,000 letters which will be ceremoniously delivered to the United Nations from all parts of the world In his campaign across the country, Roy received an enormous and surprising amount of encouragement, many signatures, and left behind many local groups to set up smaller versions of the mailbox.

In Princeton in a single day in November the Mailbox was augmented by more than 200 letters — as good a record as any place Roy had been. The box in front of the post office is the Princeton Branch of the Peace Mailbox Association, and if you too feel that the purpose of the world is more fruitfully served by live people than by semi-primitive survival societies, go and drop a letter in the box

If the collegiate freedom-riders, the high school lunch counter sitters, the youthful marchers to Moscow are taking the most direct action as insurance that they will have a world in which to be active in the future, then the rest of us of whatever generation, can do no less than help.

FREE BLOOD FOR ALL

Mrs. Honore Gets Donors. Princeton is one of few communities in the country where anyone needs it can get a blood transfusion free of charge. A large part of the credit goes to Mrs. Jacques P. Honore, Jr., director of Blood Donor Service for the Princeton Red Cross Chapter. The contract between Princeton Hospital and Princeton Red Cross provides for the medical services for transfusions to be supplied by the hospital and for donors to be supplied by the Red Cross—and that means Mrs. Honore.

A member of the staff of Princeton Red Cross Chapter since February, 1955, Mrs. Honore works closely with Mrs. Alan P. Tredennick, volunteer chairman of Blood Donor Service, in carrying out a three-pronged program: notifying donors to go to the hospital in response to requests for blood; maintaining an up-to-the-minute record of donors, and conducting a year-round drive for recruitment of new donors.

Proof of the success of the program can be seen in the statistics. Started in December, 1949, the program has arranged for 12,804 free donations of blood in the 12 years of its existence, an average of more than 1,200 donations a year.

"The program has always been successful," Mrs. Honore said proudly. "We've never failed to meet a request for needed blood."

Round-The-Clock Job. Filling these requests means that someone must be on duty 24 hours a day, including weekends, ready to notify donors and get them to the hospital. Mrs. Honore takes over a great deal of this duty, but she is aided by Mrs. Tredennick and three other Red Cross workers: Mrs. Geoffrey G. Sage, executive director of the chapter; Mrs. Albert Cornish, Red Cross secretary, and Mrs. Harris S. Colt, a volunteer.

"Sometimes we have to make as many as 20 calls before we find an available donor," Mrs. Honore explained. "Other times we're lucky and get the right answer on the first call. It averages out to about eight telephone calls for every pint of blood donated."

The Red Cross arranges for daily donations ranging from two to 26 pints in response to the hospital's request for blood in connection with operations and other standard uses. In addition, donors have to be sent nights and weekends to help out in unexpected situations, such as automobile accidents, patients with hemorrhages, or a new baby who needs a complete blood exchange because of incompatible blood.

"In these cases, people respond instantly to a call," Mrs. Honore said. "I remember one night I was asked to get three donors for an accident victim. The first three people I called agreed to go, and they were on their way to the hospital within 15 minutes after the request was received."

All Are Emergencies. "Dramatic situations such as that seem more urgent, but actually all requests for blood are emergencies," Mrs. Honore said. "After all, every call for blood means someone needs it. And if he needs it, it's an emergency!"

In order to keep the process of notifying donors running smoothly, the Red Cross keeps a set of files with complete records of donors' blood types and the dates on which they have made donations. The files are maintained by Mrs. Frederick S. Polhemus, who also sees to it that every donor receives a thank-you note and a pin indicating the amount of blood given.

The other phase of the donor program, recruitment of oew donors, is also a year-round process. "The more people who move to Princeton, the more donors we need," Mrs. Honore explained. "Besides, many people only stay in Princeton a year or two, so that we're constantly having to remove names from our lists and then find replacements."

An intensive recruitment drive conducted this fall by the Red Cross has netted a total of 150 new donors so far, but more are needed. "We can never have too many donors," said Mrs. Honore. "The more donors there are, the less often each has to give, which is better for all concerned."

Are You the Type? One of the main problems, she added, is that people with the most common blood types, O-positive and A-positive, often don't volunteer because they think they are not needed. "The very fact that these are common blood types means that they're needed more often than others," Mrs. Honore said. "In the past 12 years, two-thirds of all blood donations given have been of these two types."

Potential donors who come within range of Mrs. Honore are likely to be signed up in short order, as her enthusiasm for the program is contagious. She displays similar enthusiasm for everything else about the community, which she knows well as she is a native Princetonian.

The former Ann Clayton Mrs. Honore was married in 1943. Her husband, also a native Princetonian, is employed in the drafting department of RCA. They live at 36 Littlebrook Road with their two children, Susan, 14, a sophomore at Princeton High School, and Jacques 3rd, 11, known as Jack, who is in the seventh grade at Valley Road School.

Mrs. Honore is a graduate of Princeton High School and Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School and worked in New York for two years after her graduation. She then returned to Princeton and has held positions at the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, RCA, and Princeton University. Just before joining the Red Cross she was partner in a secretarial service known as "Town Typists."

Kudos to Princeton. "Knowing Princeton people as well as I do is one reason I like my job at the Red Cross so much," she said. "After all, it's the attitude of the Princeton people that makes this free blood program work. When you realize tht these donors are willing to give their blood to total strangers, for no reason at all except the satisfaction of helping—well, it's just another reason Princeton is so special!"

X-RAY UNIT OPENS

At Princeton Hospital. A new radiographic room has been opened in the x-ray department of Princeton Hospital. The room contains basic equipment for diagnosis by x-ray techniques and is the third radiographic room in the hospital.

It was installed to cope with a 17 percent increase in usage which is anticipated for next year. Dr. Ellwood W. Godfrey, chief radiologist, said usage of the x-ray department has grown by 45 percent in the last ten years.

Hospital officials said the new facility will allow the department to keep pace with current needs. Further expansion will be required "within the next few years," officials added. The laboratory and departments of pediatrics and maternity are also scheduled for remodeling.

The new room contains equipment which permits using the latest techniques in x-ray examination of skull, mastoid and sinuses. The room also contains an automatic x-ray film processor which can do in seven minutes what had taken more than an hour with older equipment.

Growth in the use of x-ray techniques was also reflected earlier this year in the hiring of a third radiologist, Dr. Willard F. Machle to assist Dr. Godfrey and Dr. Richard L. Barach. Dr. Machle is a specialist in both radiology and nuclear medicine.

Rescue League Thanked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Through this letter I would like to express my gratitude to the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League and especially to Mrs. A. C. Graves, Princeton, who rendered me several times an unforgettable service.

I heard from this institution through friends here in the University project after an unsuccessful search for many days after two small kittens which didn't come home. People knowing of the League reported the found cats and so I was able to pick them up.

A few days ago after trying desperately to find a new home for a teenager kitten, which we unfortunately cannot take with us to New Zealand because of a six months quarantine in England first, I contacted Mrs. Graves again, knowing that she would find a way to help me. Within a short time she was able to find a lovely family which wanted a cat and with which I could happily leave our loved pet.

These cases are just two out of so many where the League helped the desperate owner and through this the unprotected animal. Each year the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League cares for many unprotected animals, which are abandoned, lost or injured.

Talking to friends and neighbors, I learned that this League is known — but not known enopgh. Everybody, and not only the owners of pets, should know whom to call in case of help needed for an animal. They should know that there is an animal shelter in Princeton and furthermore, have the comforting idea that the animals are given care and medical attention and that if the owner cannot be located, the League makes every effort to place the animals in good homes.

Since there is no Pound in Princeton, this League is the only institution able to help and as I know from my own experiences it is glad to do so. In this connection I still want to mention in this letter that when I saw through how much trouble Mrs. Graves went for me, and how much time she was willing to spend on finding my kittens, I wondered how I ever would be able to compensate pecuniarily for all her work. When I pointed out to her that we are graduate students and finaocially barely managing, I was told that contributions and membership dues make it possible to help also in those cases where one is not able to afford the costs.

I sincerely do hope that through these lines maybe one or the other might like to become a member or would be able to contribue to this League, which, although most work is done by volunteers, needs financial support to carry on with their humane and necessary work.

HILDEGARD VON MEIER
(Mrs. Kurt E. von Meier)
226-B Marshall Street

To the Editor of Town Topics:

If you, like I, love animals, and have a horror of dog pounds, I suggest you visit the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League.

I'm afraid we are apt to take this service for granted and therefore realize little about the love and attention that goes into the care of lost, strayed and unwanted animals.

Mrs. A. C. Graves, who is in charge of the Rescue League, literally works 24 hours a day inspecting, caring or placing healthy animals in wanted homes. Unfit animals are quietly put to sleep in the most humane manner which still seems difficult but, as Mrs. Graves suggests, is more mereiful than under the wheels of a vehicle on our concrete divided highways.

Any lost, strayed or unwanted animal in the Princeton area is accepted by Rescue League. All animals are under the care of competent help supervised by local veterinarians and are kept for a period of 7 days in hopes their owners will claim them. After this period sound, healthy animals are advertised for suitable adoptive homes . . .

On the jacket of a brochure offered by Rescue League reads: "Please report at once lost or found animals. Telephone WA 1-6122." I think this sums up the Rescue League's attitude; however funds are always necessary so if the budget will allow, a small check will be of great assistance to Mrs. Graves and her work. I might add if you have an animal problem Princeton Small Animal Rescue League might be able to help.

infinitely delicate and different from any other orange peel you may have tried.

Viedt's has marzipan, too, and crystalized ginger and fruit glace assortments. Fanny Farmer is queen here, with pecan dixies, clusters, butter-scotch squares, miniatures, milk chocolates and creams.

"Jingle Bites" are Viedt's hard candies clear sugar in shapes to hang on the littlest tree. And for holiday dining, remember the Wallace Thin Mints, assorted nuts and special ice-cream by Costa.

Gourmet's candy figurines are clear figures depicting an elephant, a camel, a rabbit and — an Oldsmobile. And how about a snail? A resusable green velveteen box ($3.25) has 24 gold-wrapped chocolate snails with a soft hazle-nut chocolate filling.

Berea College students make glace nuts, peanut brittle and date nut chews for Country Mouse. (Sweet way to work your way through college.)

Nuts. Peanut brittle at The Money Tree is home-made, and a true pecan delight at 75 cents a pound. Chunks of chocolate bark here, in those intriguing irregular shapes. Milk chocolate, bittersweet or white chocolate 90 cents for half a pound. No preservatives used.

Pennington Market has foil-wrapped bonbons in a wheel of colored lace, and three pounds of assorted chocolates for $2.19 in a Christmas box. Horner's mixed fruit drops or Horner's toffee are in pleasant decorated metal decanters to keep all year.

Flora Mir is the exclusive candy at Forer's Pharmacy. But there is Whitman, too, and Candy Cupboard, Schraffts — which means Tobler, too — and the famous English candies from the house of Cadbury.

Garlic on a Snail. On down the shelf, we find Gourmet with real snails this time, all cooked, with the makings for garlic butter sauce. There is a container with two snail plates as the lids, and a recipe in English and French on the sides. "Tres Gros," $3.

Gourmet's bright orange Saki bag has Japanese good-luck signs on the outside, and smoked oysters, Hama cocktail crackers, water chestunts, bamboo shoots, bean thread and Kikkoman soy sauce for $5.95.

Two jars of foie gras and Beluga caviar nest in a Norwegian — though how Norway got into this act is a mystery —metal trunk box at Gourmet.

Caviar for an empress is under lock and key (literally) at the Nassau Del. It's fresh Beluga Malossol, Romanoff private-stock cavair at $9 for four ounces. That ought to bring in the New Year with a flourish of trumpets.

Crackers, Please. Less imposing Romanoffs at the Del go all the way down to 89 cents for a teaspoon or so. And don't forget the foie gras: Baby-bloc de Fois gras aux Truffles du Peugioul for $9.75, with lesser breeds from $3.35.

The Del will take a basket of any size and pack into it any foods you choose, from the tea sampler tins, to the French brie cheeses in their 2-kilo rounds to the gorgonzola steeped in brandy. We'll just take the four ounces of private stock caviar.

At Pennington Market, you'll find shrimp boats, carb tartlets, lobster "traps" (newburg) and a cheese-nut ball, all frozen for your next holiday party. Spruce Bend is the brand, 85 cents for ten is the approximate price.

From Pennington, you may order goose or suckling pig for holiday dining. In stock, are capon, ducks and turkeys. Place your orders for pig or goose as soon as you can.

The Food Mart on Witherspoon Street has holiday meats for your choice, too, and this market will cook your turkey, duck or good English roast Beef if you'd rather not bother yourself.

Fruit cakes are in stock here, and so are fine cheeses, either packaged together in wheels and sets, or offered across the counter in good sharp bulk.

Slice 'em Thin. Don't forget the Food Mart when New Year's Eve comes around because this market has an extraordinary assortment of cold cuts and tooth-cracking rye and pumpernickle breads (look at the marbelized dark-and-light rye, for example)

On the dessert side this Christmas, we may serve Pennington's Horn and Hardart fruit cake for $2.19 or $3.65, or the individual fruitcakes from Rosemarie de Paris at Louise Maas. These come ten in a box for $2, with hard sauce of rum and brandy and a different Christmas decoration (red cherry, nut) on each.

A complete Rosemarie brandied fruit-cake is $3.50 for two pounds at Maas. Country Mouse has the Berea College fruit cakes, and miniatures with a rum sauce.

Gourmet carves a whole Brie, and offers an enormous silver Edam cheese or a little one, Reblochon, Camembert and Fromages de Grappe for eating alone or over a cracker.

Individual cheese treats from that Country Mouse are wrapped in colored cellophane for inclusion in stockings. Aged cheddar in a half-pound

Just a Little One, for the Road

Although the stock in liquor stores during the holiday season is pretty much the same from store to store, there are certain individual offerings, certain choice bottlings that a store values above the usual.

Wine and Game: A crystal (Baccarat) decanter filled with Prince H. de Polignac cognac. A round, beautifully etched piece of glassware containing very special brew.

Claridge: "Coffee sport" —Leroux Creme de Cafe in a metal frame over a candle to keep the bottle at just the right heat.

Pink Elephant: La Tache, a red burgandy which is the first of the '59 Bordeaux to arrive. $9.68

Yeoman's: Advokaat Bols, an eggnog liqueur ($4.69) from Holland, and the Italian eggnog, which is really zabaglione in disguise.

Cousins: A baby-blue Grecian urn containing, of all things in the world, Beam's bourbon.

Princeton Junction Package Store: Baskets of bottles, especially one at $52.-42 with Southern Comfort, Grand Marnier, Cliquot Champagne, VO, Four Roses and Haig and Haig Five Star.

We take pleasure in announcing that we shall be open each evening until 6 p.m. through December 23,

Here, too, you'll find Dickinson's Preserves in apricot-pineapple, Siberian crabapple, Marshall strawberry, Bing cherry and Wild Canadian blueberry, which is about as international a jam as anyhody can get into.

This concludes our annual tour of the shops of Princeton and we hope it has been a pleasant and profitable one for you. We leave you with a wish for joy and peace in the New Year and on the Christmas Day that is to come.

PORTRAIT ON DISPLAY

At Firestone Library. A portrait of John Milton as he appeared in 1670, four years before his death, never shown before in public, will be exhibited on the main floor of the Firestone Library throughout the holiday season. It was presented to the Library by William H. Scheide of 133 Library Place, Class of 1936.

The pastel portrait, traditionally attributed to the work of William Faithorne, shows the author of Paradise Lost, serene thugh sightless, in his 62nd year. The painting is drawn on a sheet of paper measuring 10½ by 8 inches which has been pasted to a cardboard mount. The chain lines of the paper are clearly visible as vertical marks.

According to John R. Martin, Princeton Professor of Art and Archaeology, the portrait is in good condition. He notes however that "the surface has been rubbed slightly in a few places" and "there has been some retouching." In Dr. Martin's opinion, there is only one other important portrait of Milton to be seen in America a painting of the poet as a boy of 10, owned by the Pierpont Morgan Library in New York.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

Under Point Program. Two residents of the Princeton area were deprived of driving licenses this week under the New Jersey 60/70 speed program.

Frederic L. Arnold, 38, 40 North Stanworth, was convicted in Pennsylvania and in accordance with the reciprocity agreement, has had his license suspended for 30 days. Richard H. Hoagland, 21, of Pennington, has also had his license suspended for a 30-day period.

. . . and Assorted Candies

There's something pleasant and solid about visiting the various candy stores around town and finding a good, substantial 12-inch candy cane, exactly like the ones that have been around since the days when "peppermint" meant Christmas, and not the Twist.

Thorne's has them, so does Viedt's. Louise Maas is in on it, too and so is the Pennington Market and Forer's Pharmacy.

Viedt's are handrolled, two-for-a quarter, a nickel apiece or 35 cents each Miss Maas rolls hers into a basket and fills the basket with hard candies. Thorne's has those absurd one-inch miniatures and the little sister four-inch canes, and the foot-long daddies.

COTILLION PLANNED

On Friday. The Peggy Longstreth Bayer School of the Dance will hold its 14th annual Christmas Cotillion on Friday, from 4.30 to 6 at the Sportsmen's Club, Terhune Road. Contests will be held for grades five through eight in the Waltz, Cha Cha and the Jitterbug.

Mrs. Bayer will be assisted by Mrs. Jack A. Vernon. Members of the Dance Committee are Mrs. Raymond F. Barron, Mrs. John E. Caton, Mrs. Donovan R. Ellis, Mrs. Gordon D Griffin and Mrs. Clifford L. Graf.

DR. NERGAARD NAMED

To RCA Post. Dr. Leon S. Nergaard, 11 Rollingmead, has been appointed to the post of Director of the Microwave Research Laboratory at RCA.

Dr. Nergaard has been an associate laboratory director since early in 1960. He has made a series of contributions tn electron tube theory and development, and was the winner of the 1960 RCA Outstanding Achievement Award in Science for "basic and practical contributions to the science of microwave electron tubes and thermionic cathodes."

In announcing Dr. Nergaard's appointment, Dr. James Hillier, vice-president of RCA Laboratories, said: "Progress in microwave technology is vital to the future of electronic communications as the lower portions of the radio frequency spectrum become increasingly crowded. We are confidient that, under Dr. Nergaard, RCA will continue to accelerate the advance of microwave communications."

MUSIC
In Princeton

SERKIN PRAISED

For Satisfying Recital. On Sunday evening at McCarter Theatre, the pianist Rudolf Serkin presented one of the most satisfying recitals heard here in recent years. The program consisted of the G major Sonata from Beethoven's Opus 31, Max Reger's Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Bach, and the complete set of Chopin Preludes, Opus 28.

This lengthy and solid program, in itself, attests to the seriousness of Mr. Serkin's artistic intentions; it was all meat and potatoes, with none of the side dishes and hors d'oeuvres which some performers like to use to coax applause from the audience (not to mention those who serve up entire evenings of hors d'oeuvres).

The warmth of the reception accorded to Mr Serkin confirmed the soundness of this uncompromising program. The Reger work cannot have been an unalloyed pleasure to most of the audience, but it, too, was well applauded; clearly, this sort of piece is not included on a program in order to please the multitudes.

Mr. Serkin's enthusiasm for the work was evident from his performance, if the innumerable variations and the rock-crusher of a fugue are hard work for the audience, they are obviously nothing less than backbreaking for the performer. One cannot but admire Mr Serkin's persistence in advocating such uningratiating music, although one quietly wonders whether it is worth the effort.

With this exception, the evening was of the highest musical worth. The playing was on a level with the programming: serious and straightforward, with no concessions or indulgences. This was especially noteworthy in the Chopin Preludes, which performance might accurately be described, at least in parts, as a revelation. Honest Chopin players are few indeed; nearly all of the professional Chopinists are guilty of many and grievious lapses into mannerism mostly in the interest of self-glorification.

There was none of this Sunday; Mr Serkin's insistence that no harmony be slighted in the name of "color" brought a new clarity to many of the Preludes, scrubbing clean the everlasting smudge of the damper pedal. In some few pieces, such as the E-flat minor Prelude, the result was a one-sided view of Chopin, but it was the side we never otherwise see, and welcome for that reason.

Mr. Serkin's primacy as a performer of Beethoven needs no underlining at this late date. If some would have liked a little more sparkle in the Rondo, they would surely not have wished it at the expense of the other salient virtues of the performance. In any case, sparkle was not wanting in the Mozart D major Rondo which was offered as an encore (a choice of encore which puts to shame the usual trash-offering with which the average virtuoso thanks his audience for their applause).

A concert of this quality does not really require criticism. It deserves an audience, and received, despite the hazardous weather, a full and responsive one. If all performers were endowed with Mr. Serkin's integrity and seriousness of purpose, one of the major functions of journalistic criticism would quickly vanish. Until that happy day, let us be grateful for the artists who refuse to turn the concert hall into a circus arena and who serve their art instead of using it as an instrument of aggrandizement.

SPORTS In Princeton

PUZZLING PICTURE

In Winter Sports. As the Christmas vacation break arrived, Princeton's basketball and hockey teams had compiled records that were somewhat out of proportion to their pre-season prospects. Having won only nine games all of last year, the Tiger skaters provided a pleasant surprise as they ripped off victories over Middlebury, Army, Colgate and Northeastern.

Defensive troubles continued to make their path a rough one, but they are a volatile outfit which has the knack of scoring when a goal is needed most. Whether or not the .500 mark is topped this season — the toughest opponents are yet ahead — hockey in Baker Rink will provide a good share of exciting action.

In unexpected contrast, Princeton's veteran basketball team's is having its troubles. The Tigers were 2-3 in their first five games, although they were expected to draw even with the .500 mark in Wednesday night's contest with Rutgers.

The opposition in basketball has been rough — particularly the three games the team has lost: Villanova here, Temple and Navy away. What bothers followers of the team is the manner in which it has played —occasionally sloppily, sometimes lethargically. In brief, it hasn't worked as hard to win as it must if successful defense of the Ivy championship is to be achieved.

DOWN—BUT NO GOAL: Bill Hill, who is off to a great start as Princeton's goalie this season, is on the ice after making a save in 3-2 victory over Colgate. Captain Austie Sullivan lends assistance. (Photo by T. Wistar Brown 5th.)

The loss to Temple was marked by a see-saw first half, ability on the Tigers' part to draw even at 45-all midway through the second period but not to match the Owls in the stretch run. It was a 65-55 final, with Art Hyland's 16 points high for the losers. Pete Campbell was pared to 13 and made only 12 three days later against Navy.

Navy Wins Easily. Princeton never threatened seriously against the midshipmen after ten minutes of the opening half. The Tigers lost an early 7-2 lead, trailed by 38-30 at the intermission and by as much as 17 points a few minutes befnre the final whistle. The score at the buzzer was 70-61.

Two factors for success at Annapolis were there: good rebounding by Captain Al Kaemmerlen and a fine performance by Bill Haarlow, the only new member of the starting team. Haarlow collected 17 points to pace the Princeton offense, but Campbell was held to two field goals and the Tiger attack again fell short.

In its first five games this season, the high mark in regulation time has been 66 points — hardly adequate if the potential of this year's squad is to be realized. The basic deficiency is lack of aggressiveness — in a word, the team so far isn't hungry.

How quickly the trend can be reversed with positive results is a sizeable question mark. The next four games are all away against tough opposition: Northwestern, Creighton and Butler on a midwestern swing, and then Penn at the Palestra on January 6 in the Ivy opener.

SKATERS FINISH FAST

To Add to Victory String. A goal with 36 seconds left to beat Colgate and another with 1:08 left to top Northeastern produced welcome victories last weekend for the hockey team. On both occasions, defensive lapses were erased by break-away ability on attack.

As might be expected, Johnny Cook had a big hand in the proceedings. In the Colgate affair, he circled the cage and tucked the puck into the far upper corner to climax a picturesque solo dash.

Good defensive play might have given goalie Bill Hill a second shutout to match the whitewash of Army. The Tigers had a 2-0 lead with less than half the third period left but Colgate drew even, setting the stage for Cook's game-winning effort.

Northeastern Beaten, 7-6. Midway through the second period against Northeastern, Princeton had a 5-2 lead but this melted to a 5-5 tie at 14 42 of the final round. At 18 13, Cook took a pass from one blue line to the other and bore down on the visitors' goalie, caging a sharp thrust from 15 feet out.

It should have been good for a 6-5 triumph, but the Huskies drew even again with a minute and a half to play. Twenty seconds later, Cook fed Hyland for a fast break and the first-line center hit the target with the victors' seventh goal of a frequently frantic evening.

ANDOVER WINS

Takes Hockey Title. An Andover hockey team which blended speed, offensive depth and an impenetrable defense won the 14th annual Lawrenceville Hockey Tournament last weekend. The three victories which the Massachusetts skaters recorded ran their unbeaten string over two seasons to 20.

A steadily-improving Taft team, unseeded in the pre-tournament rankings, lost to Andover in the final game, played Saturday afternoon in Baker Rink for the Piel Memorial Trophy. The score was 3-0, the victors recording their third straight shutout in the two-day affair. Earlier, they had blanked Lawrenceville, 6-0, and Choate, 10-0.

Andover capitalized on its first big chance early in the first period of the championship game. With Taft two men short on penalties, forward Jorge Gonzales capped a power play with a shot from six feet out.

Half a minute later, Captain Charlie Stuart scored on a slap shot from close to the blue line. The second period was scoreless but at 2:07 of the final round, Bill Smoyer drove home the rebound of another shot by Stuart.

Choate Places Third. A fine comeback was credited to The Choate School, on which three Princeton Country Day alumni were playing. The Wallingford, Conn., entry ousted third-seeded Nichols, 3-1, in the first round, came a cropper Friday afternoon when Andover's power produced a 10-0 defeat but bounced back with a 3-2 victory over Deerfield.

Choate's second triumph in the tournament went 45 seconds into overtime, the only contest in the 12 played to do so. Rob Carrick, Nick Hare and Huck Fairman were the PCD alumni on the team.

Burrillville High School, first Rhode Island entry in the tournament, defeated Nichols, 2-1, on Saturday to take the consolation final. Host school, Lawrenceville was beaten by Nichols in the second game it played Friday but rebounded to top its traditional rival, Hill, 7-4, Saturday morning. The victory was good for seventh place.

Some 120 boys from the eight participating schools came to Princeton for the occasion. Four of the games were played Friday at Lawrenceville's Lavino Rink in weather so cold that cream being served with coffee between periods froze solid.

WE Congratulate

CHARLIE STUART
BILL SMOYER
Hockey Champions

Andover's victory in the Lawrenceville Hockey Tournament Saturday was fittingly achieved in the rink where two key members of its team had learned to skate. Forward Bill Smoyer, a member of one of the fastest lines representing an eastern prep school this season, and Captain Charlie Stuart, three-year veteran on defense, first played the sport at Princeton Country Day School.

Andover rode to the championship—its first in five attempts in the 14 years that the tournament has been held—on the wings of three successive shutouts, scoring a total of 19 goals while blanking Lawrenceville, Choate and Taft. In doing so, it became the first American school to win the event without yielding a goal. One other school—Trinity College of Canada—achieved the feat almost a decade ago.

Coached by Ted Harrison, a three-letterman (football, hockey, baseball) at Yale 20 years ago, Andover won on a basis of offensive depth (three good lines) and fine, rink-long pursuit of the puck. Goalie Dexter Newton, often capable of eye-catching saves, got such fine protection that he was called on to stop only 25 shots in the eight and a half periods he played. In the first round of the championship final, while Andover was taking a 2-0 lead, Taft was sufficiently harried so that it did not have a single shot on target.

Smoyer, who comes from a family of athletes, has already been elected captain of the Andover soccer team for 1962. Stuart, whose father's only claim to athletic fame is ability to finish 18 holes of golf without sounding as if he had run uphill all the way, plays football, hockey and baseball at Andover.

In Saturday's contest against Taft, he filled an unusual iron-man role, playing the entire game without substitution. His coach's comment in introducing him at the dinner preceding the tournament:

"The finest defensive player I have had in my 15 years of coaching the sport."

PHS FIVE REBOUNDS
With Victory Over Ewing.

The mark of a champion is ability to come back. The Princeton High School basketball team rebounded from a disappointing two-point upset thrown at it last week by Freehold when it beat Ewing High School Friday, 61-48. It was the Little Tigers' second win in three games.

Princeton High had too much speed, too much height and too sharp a shooting eye, especially in the first and fourth periods, for the Blue Devils to contain. Despite the obvious superiority of the Little Tigers, Ewing, Central Jersey Group III champions last year, hung on gamely until the fourth period when PHS hit for 10 consecutive points to insure its win.

The game was a classic example of the shoe being on the other foot. Last year, Borzok was forced to go with a quintet that was composed of sophomores and juniors, all on the short side and none with experience. The result was disastrous.

This season, Ewing coach Stu Murray has the green team, his tall tall players have graduated, and he is forced to juggle his squad endlessly in an attempt to come up with an adequate five. The Princeton defeat was Ewing's third in a row.

The Blue and White led all the way, jumping to a 15-9 margin at the end of the first quarter. Baskets by John Bensinger and Hank Schmidt just before the end of the half upped the visitors' lead to 13 points. Top scorer for PHS, as he has been in every game to date, was George Tucker with 19. The scoring was spread out more in this game, however, as Danny Brown hit for 16, Charlie Pemberton for 14 and Bensinger, seven.

For Borzok, the victory was "just another ball game under our belts. We still need experience," reported Borzok who indicated that it was still too early for him to say how well he thought the Little Tigers would do this season. "It's good to see them come back, though," he said.

HUN SPLITS FIRST TWO

Idle Until January 10. The Hun School basketball team won its first Penn-Jersey Conference game Friday, beating Bryn Athyn, 42-32, on its home court, after losing its opener to Pingry two days earlier. Coach Dan Barren's quintet will not return to action until January 10 when it travels to Philadelphia to oppose Germantown.

Hun combined the rebounding of its co-captain, Jim Byer, who grabbed 21 for the home team, a slightly sharper shooting eye, and plenty of old-fashioned hustle to win its first game of the season. Hun led throughout.

Both squads gave evidence of greeness and uneven play, particularly in the first half. The losers, playing their first of the season, had difficulty in moving the ball and performed poorly at the foul line as well. At the end of the game, Coach Barren reported that "A lot of work still has to be done."

Hun led at the half, 20-15, mainly on the shooting of Byer and Al Staller who each had six points in this period. Shortly after the start of the third period, the visitors narrowed the gap to 22-20.

That is as close as they were to get. A long push shot by Richard Pat from the corner, a lay-up by C. A. Hale, a bucket by Byer from underneath, a two-pointer by Staller and another by Byer were good for 10 straight points to put Hun in front by 12 and out of danger.

One of the pluses of the game, according to Barren, was

First In 50 Years

When Cornell defeated Yale in hockey Saturday, 2 to 1, it marked the first time in exactly 50 years that the Ithacans have conquered the Blue in the sport. The two colleges have not met regularly since that time, the Ithacans reviving the sport about five years ago after many winters without a rink.

One of the Cornell goals was scored by Dick Rotnem, a Princeton Country Day and Lawrenceville alumnus. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rotnem of 130 Stockton Street.

was the performance of Pat. Playing in his first game, a newcomer to Hun, he showed up well both offensively and defensively. "He sure rose to the occasion," said Barren.

High for the winners were Byer with 16, Staller, 10, and Alex Langel, 8. An oddity in Hun's offense was that the Red and Black did not score a single point from the foul line.

Hun's opening 51-33 loss to Pingry was marked by peaks and valleys in the losers' attack. The game was played at Pingry.

The Red and Black scored only one point in the first period to fall behind 11-1. After Pingry had added two more points, Hun went on to record 18 successive points to go ahead 19-13.

In the third period, Hun again went from feast to famine and could garner only five points. In the same eight minutes, Pingry was enjoying its most productive period, hitting for 22 markers to put the game out of the visitors' reach.

"We made only 21 per cent of our foul shots in that game and weren't much better from the floor," said Barren. "You can't expect to win with that kind of shooting."

LARRIE TEAM ROMPS

To Basketball Victory. Lawrenceville's basketball team smothered Poly Prep, 63-34, last Wednesday in the team's final game before the two-week Christmas layoff. The basketball team will return to action on Saturday, January 6, against Farragut Academy at Toms River.

Bob Moore's outside shooting paced the Red and Back to a 21-8 lead at the end of the first period. Reserves played much of the game as the Larries registered their second victory in three starts.

Lawrenceville's hockey team absorbed a 12-0 beating at the hands of the Princeton freshmen last Wednesday before the start of the school's invitation tournament last weekend (See page 24). The team will return to the ice on Saturday, January 6, for a contest with the Cranford Hockey Club at Lavino Rink

GYM TO BE OPEN

During Xmas Vacation. The Princeton High School gym will be open for three days during Christmas vacation between 1 and 3 so that boys who wish to play basketball and other sports may use the school facilities.

The gym will be open next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 27, 28 and 29. The two-hour periods will be supervised by representatives of the Princeton YMCA. The program is sponsored jointly by the YMCA and the Borough Board of Education.

BOWLING NOTES

Lead Changes Hands. Prince Laundro (54) swept back into first place in the "B" League to highlight Princeton bowling action last week. Edwards Engraving and the Sportsmen No. 1 were tied for second with 52 points each. Princeton Inn (64) maintained a comfortable five-game margin over Nini Motors in the "A" circuit.

In other action, the Crescents continued to pace the Industrial loop, with a 13-point edge over Tiger Garage (46), and Princeton Market (51) lost ground but still led Pine Tree by three points in the Classic League. In the Women's Industrial loop, Jefferson Plumbing (84) continued to lead Gale Cleaners by seven points.

Frank Maddalon rolled the high individual game of the week, a 246 score and a 610 series in the "B" League. Other top scores included Howard MeWhorter, 236; Mike Pinelli and Joe Baldino, 224 each; Harry Kahny, 217; Percy Klatskin, 205; and Claude Pinelli, 200, in the "B" loop; and Bill Dumble, 212; Paul Kettler, 205-206 and 602; and Bill Bathie and John Bryan, 207 each, in the "A" circuit.

Also, Joe Viglione, 222-204 and 603; Joe Trani, 221 and 610; Frank Delneso, 215; Fred Procaccini and Joe Ruberto, 204 each; and Bob Sculerati and Ben Trani, 201 each, in the Classic League, and Gil Ireland, 216, Pros Aeschbacher, 211, and Carmen Panicaro, 202, in the Industrial circuit. Margaret Drummond paced the Women's Industrial loop with a 192 game.

HIGH SCORER: Pete Campbell is expected to break virtually every Princeton career-scoring record before he completes his senior year this season.

ETS, RCA ADVANCE

In Men's Basketball League. Educational Testing Service RCA Labs and Sannino A. C. scored victories this week to advance in the YMCA Research and Industrial Basketball League after the second week of play.

RCA Labs, League champions last year, won their second straight in as many starts, defeating Food Machinery and Chemical easily, 45-17. Bill Ehnot had 13 points to pace the winners who now are alone at the top with a 2-0 record.

In the closest game of the night, ETS, playing its first game after drawing a bye last week, handed RCA Astro its first loss in two games by upending the Spacemen, 45 to 39. Joe Patnick, Al Meyers and Steve Rensavage combined to tally all but two of ETS's points. Bill Appleton with 11 was the only player to hit double figures for the losers. The win tied ETS with YMCA for second place with 1-0 records.

An 18-point performance by Ray Tamasi, high for the evening, enabled Sannino AC to topple winless Institute for Defense Analyses, 53 to 21. It was Sannino's first victory and tied it with RCA Astro for third place. The loss dropped IDA to the cellar, a spot it shares with FMC. Both have 0-2 records.

FIRST WIN RECORDED

By Flying Fish Girls. The girls team of the Princeton YMCA Flying Fish Club captured its first victory in three meets Saturday when they swam to a 99-77 win over the Shore Area YMCA. The same day in Jersey City, the boys

The group will meet January 10 at 7:30 and every succeeding Wednesday evening until the conclusion of the course in the board room of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company. At Western Electric. Western Electric Company of Carter Road has announced four promotions and changes in personnel.

They are: Fred W. Turner, promoted from assistant director to director, Process Research and Development; Earl J. McLean, from research leader to assistant director, Mechanization Research and Development; Ross M. Sigmon, former superintendent, Research Administration at the Carter Road plant, director of Research and Consultation at the Company's New York headquarters; and Lewis Bain, former director, Process Research and Development, replacing Mr. Sigmon.

A 1943 graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology Mr. Bain held a number of supervisory and engineering assignments at the company's Chicago plant before being transferred to the Carter Road Research Center in 1958. Mr. McLean started his career at the Chicago plant, after graduating from Northwestern University in 1952. He, too, was transferred to the Research Center in 1958. HOME WINS AWARD

From Parents' Magazine. A three-bedroom Colonial home called "Holly Hill" designed by the Institute for Essential Housing, State Road, has won first place for this region in the 12th annual Builders' Competition held by Parents' Magazine.

Pink Elephant Named

Beverages-by-Wire has appointed The Pink Elephant, 252 Nassau Street, as its sole representative in the Princeton area.

Robert McCarthy, owner of the Nassau Street liquor store, says that Beverages-by-Wire allows a customer in Princeton to send a beverage gift to 38 of the 50 states. The system works in much the same manner as flowers-by-wire.

Because of varying laws set up in different states by Alcoholic Beverage Commissions, it is not possible to use the service in every state, Mr. McCarthy points out. Complete information about the use of the service is available at The Pink Elephant, WA 1-7444.

Designed by Schwinn and Schumard, consulting architects for the Institute, and built in Lambertville by Woolsey and Cadwallader, the home was cited for its floor plan, which provides special facilities for families with children.

Entries in the contest are divided into six geographic regions and regional awards are given to houses in two price groups: those selling for less than $15,999 and those selling up to $25,000 exclusive of land.

IEH won its award in the lower price class. The home can be built for under $10,000.

PLAYTHINGS CITED

For Outstanding Plant. Creative Playthings, Inc., of Cranbury, received a plaque Monday as one of ten winning companies in the "New Jersey Business" magazine competition for outstanding new industrial construction.

Frank Caplan of Princeton, president of Creative Playthings, accepted the award for the firm. Leo L. Fischer of Union was the architect and William C. Ehret of Trenton the builder.

team of the Flying Fish suffered their first defeat, dropping a 114-68 decision to the Jersey City YMCA.

First places were won for the girls by Nancy Burroughs, Gail Blattenberger, Jennifer Clinton, Jacqui Linder and Linda Cazin. Elizabeth Van Riper, Pat Kazarow, Nancy Wise and Nancy Burrough won the 200-yard relay for 11-12 year olds. Pam Kerr, Judy Wakefield, Gail Blattenberger and Jennifer Clinton combined to win the 200-yard freestyle relay.

The boys could garner only five firsts in losing their initial meet. Winners included Matt Twell, Bill Howe, George Good and Mark Hoffman. The relay team of Greg Youngs, Charles Petzold, Dick Van Kirk and Bill Howe took first place. This same quartet placed fourth in Junior Men's Championship competition at the Newark Boys Club in the 400-yard medley relay team. The meet was sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union.

HOCKEY STREAK ENDS

With Loss to Boston U. The four-game winning streak compiled by the Princeton hockey team came to an end Tuesday night in Baker Rink with a 6-4 loss to Boston University.

Playing either as if they cared very little, which is unlikely, or — more probably — as if they felt they could win whenever they put on the pressure, the Tigers were guilty of one defensive lapse after another. Virtually all of the half dozen goals the victors recorded came either from faulty clearing on Princeton's part, or inability to give goalie Bill Hill adequate assistance.

Princeton outshot the visiting Terriers, 39-27, but failed to take advantage of several good openings by directing point-blank drives squarely at goalie Glenn Eberly. Throughout the evening, there was a frequent lack of cohesion — both in launching an attack and in attack play.

Boston University brought a routine 2-2 record into the Rink, and has produced several far more impressive teams here in the past decade. Off their play against either Army or Northeastern, the Tigers could have bagged their fifth in a row — but they wouldn't put out enough hustle to turn the trick.

Visitors Never Headed. B.U. was away to a pair of first-period goals, the first scored when the Tiger defense was turned too easily and the second on a screen shot that Hill never saw. This was the only round in which the visitors outshot the Princetonians — 12 to 9.

The home forces staged their best effort early in the second period. Jim Hyland scored at 3:29 and Johnny Cook followed half a minute later, both shots hitting the mark from close range. B.U. again moved out to a two-goal lead, but Cook got his second goal of the evening with 57 seconds left to narrow the gap to 4-3.

The visitors wrapped up the decision with their final cluster of two in the third period. Dave Hersey of the Tigers' second line got one back, but the last ten minutes produced no great amount of pressure.

PHS WINS EASILY

Trounces Hunterdon Central. The only team it defeated last season was an easy conquest Tuesday night for the Princeton High School basketball team. In a road game, the Blue and White rolled over Hunterdon Central, 58 to 38, raising its mark to 3-1.

Sixteen points in the first eight minutes gave the visiting Little Tigers a quick lead which they never relinquished. A 23-point performance by George Tucker paced both quintets as Coach Tony Borzok used 11 players during the evening.

Two other Princetonians were in double figures, Brown and Pemberton each contributing 11. Next on the PHS schedule is Pennington, booked for a vacation contest next Thursday.

HUN STUDENT WINS

Fencing Gold Medal. Donal Sieja, Hun School student, was awarded the gold medal as the top fencer after a day-long competition held Saturday at Newark's Essex Catholic High School among 25 entries from eight schools throughout the state. Sieja is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sieja of 149 Terhune Road. His father is the fencing coach at Princeton University.

The competition was sponsored by the Junior Olympic Fencing Committee and the Amateur Fencing League of America. Ten boys were selected as members of the New Jersey Junior Olympic Fencing Team, as a result of the event.

Among the ten chosen, in addition to Seija, was Turki Faisal of Lawrenceville School. The pair will be placed with the Princeton University team in an effort to develop their ability.

MEETING CANCELED

In Basketball League. The YMCA High School Basketball League will not meet Friday as scheduled at the Princeton High School gym.

During the holidays, the high school gym will be open for boys in the community next Wednesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 and on Friday, the 29th, from 10 to noon. All boys are encouraged to attend the holiday practice sessions and to join the league in January.

The Young Adults consist of members of various churches gathered together for social, humanitarian and religious purposes. CANDLES FEATURED

In Christmas Services. Candlelight services this Sunday, Christmas Eve, will be a feature of Christmas services in many Princeton area churches.

A family candlelight service will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. at Second Presbyterian Church. A 15-minute concert by the church's Memorial Handbell Choir will precede the service.

The candlelighting service at Calvary Baptist Church is scheduled for Sunday at 4:30 p.m. This will differ from many of the other services in that each person attending will receive a candle to take home, so that the candles at home may be lighted with the flame from the church.

The Unitarian Church of Princeton and Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church are both planning candlelight services Sunday at 5 p.m. Churches scheduling candlelight services for 7 p.m. are Westerly Road and Hopewell Calvary Baptist. Princeton Methodist's candlelight service will be Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

LIVING NATIVITY SET

At Hopewell Church. The fifth annual "Living Nativity" scene will be staged this week by members of Calvary Baptist Church on the church lawn at 3 East Broad Street, Hopewell. The scene will be presented each evening, Thursday through Sunday, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The scene is staged in a small wooden lean-to set on the church lawn and illuminated with flood lights. It depicts Mary, Joseph, the three Wise Men, and shepherds adoring the Christ child. Church members participating stay in the same positions throughout the hour-and-a-half that the scene is staged.

"Those who stand in the scene agree that Christmas means more to them because of this experience," said the Rev. Curtis L. Hoffman, pastor of Calvary Baptist. This is true, he added, even though participants sometimes have had to stand in temperatures as low as 8 degrees above zero.

Another time, Mr. Hoffman said, the scene was staged in a snowstorm so heavy that it stopped traffic. The snow collected on the heads and shoulders of the people in the nativity scene, but they remained in position throughout the stated time.

Bible Come To Life. "It looked as if the Bible passage, 'On a cold winter's night,' had come to life," said Mr. Hoffman.

A not-so-still participant in the scene, who always looks very much alive, is "Cocoa," the donkey. "Cocoa" is lent to the church each year by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. J. Merrill Knapp of Rosedale Road.

Committee members in charge of arrangements for this year's "Living Nativity" are Mrs. Vernon V. Vandewater, Douglas Gunn, Frank Hall, Herbert Jones and Andrew Wyckoff.

PECK IS PRESIDENT

Of Young Adult Group. John Peck, Jr., of 31 Hawthorne Avenue, has been elected president of the recently-organized United Young Adult Fellowship.

Other new officers are Alan Hendry, 271 Hawthorne Avenue, secretary-treasurer; Miss Linda Mondone, 77 Bayard Lane, program chairman; and Miss Marcia Hoffman, 30 Vandeventer Avenue, publicity chairman. The Fellowship is an inter-church group open to single young adults.

Meetings are held on alternate Sunday evenings. Dinner meetings are held on alternate Thursdays. A short worship service precedes the dinner meetings.

A film entitled "Epistle From the Koreans" will be shown at the fellowship's next meeting on Sunday, January 7, at 8 p.m. in Trinity Church. Refreshments will be served.

RABBI KRAUSS ELECTED

Heads Pastors' Group. Rabbi Aaron N. H. Krauss of Princeton Jewish Center has been elected president of the Princeton Pastors' Association for the coming year. He succeeds the Rev. Charles W. Marker, pastor of Princeton Methodist Church.

The Rev. Kenneth S. Dannenhauer, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, was elected vice president of the association, suceeding Rabbi Krauss. Re-elected as secretary-treasurer was the Rev. Charles G. Newbery, vicar of All Saints' Chapel of Trinity Parish.

exempt family fallout shelters from property taxation.

Mr. Farrington and members of the committee will meet next month to discuss specifics of the proposed bill. A more detailed piece of legislation than Assembly Bill 440, which died in the last session, is planned.

Theodore S. Reed is chairman of the GPCC committee. Capt. Geoffrey Sage, civil defense director for Borough and Township, is acting as a consultant to the group.

ASSESSMENTS PASSED

For Sycamore Road. Township Committee devoted equal — and extensive — time on Monday night to the complaints of a single taxpayer and the complaints of the community's largest land-holder and then rejected them both and passed the Sycamore Road assessments.

The approval was given with one dissenting vote (Committeeman John S. Mount) and one abstention (Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman).

The chief protesters at the assessment hearing were E. E Loebner, 100 Sycamore Road and Princeton University, represented by Henry M. Stratton.

In his extended remarks, Mr. Loebner told Committee that he protested his $900 assessment because it was 90 percent of the total increased value of his property whereas other assessments were only 33 percent; because the Township measured his frontage incorrectly and gave him more than he had; because he had had to construct a new driveway at his own expense after the new road made his old one hazardous; because his lot was subject to flooding; because the road was two and one-half feet above his lot, making a "dam" and because his pie-shaped lot was unfairly assessed the same amount it would have been if it had been rectangular.

Rebuttal. In reply, Stuart Robson, Township assessor, told Mr. Loebner and Committee members that the Board of Assessors did not feel that Mr. Loebner's property had suffered any appreciable flood damage; that his lot had been measured according to Township maps; that the new driveway enhanced the value of his property and that, in computing percentages, he was comparing his large lot to much smaller ones and that the assessors do not take into consideration such matters as a pie-shaped lot.

Joining Mr. Loebner, Mr. Stratton told Committee that the University objected to the entire assessment procedure, believing that Sycamore was a circulation street built for the benefit of the entire community and as such, should be paid for in its entirety by the Township.

He also protested the University's $15,325 assessment on the grounds that it represented 60 percent of the total assessment where as the University only had 45 percent of the total road frontage.

The cost of the road was $35,000 and the assessments are $26,856. The $8,641 difference has been assumed by the Township because Committee and the Assessors feel that the street was indeed put through as a community benefit and not solely as a destination street serving people who live on it.

Benefit? The familiar question of "benefit" arose. Mr. Stratton maintaining that the road did not benefit the University, Mr. Loebner maintaining that it did not benefit his property and Mrs. John Rockwell maintaining that it did actual harm to her property on the corner of Harrison and Sycamore.

Mr. Robson and Committeemen explained that "benefit" is defined in state statutes covering assessment procedures and that the Township is bound by these definitions.

Mr. Stratton told Committee that the only ceilings restraining the assessors were the actual cost of the project and the benefit derived, and that otherwise, the assessors could set their own arbitrary rules and still remain within the law.

"I hold that this is an illegal decision because it is arbitrary and discriminatory," Mr. Stratton declared, and Committeeman William Marvel, acting as chairman in place of Mr. Fairman, told the clerk to make certain that the statement was attributed to Mr. Stratton in the minutes.

At the conclusion of the public hearing, Committee voted 2-1 to table the Sycamore matter, Committeeman Maurice F. Healy, Jr., voting "no."

However, in executive session, Committee decided to go back over the matter, re-open it and take another vote. At this time, the assessments were approved with Mr. Mount's "no" vote.

Mayor Fairman did not participate in any of the Sycamore Road discussion because of his association with the University.

And Furthermore. In other business, Committee passed the alcoholic beverage amendment which permits taverns to be open from 10 p.m. to midnight when New Year's Eve occurs on a Sunday, and awarded a livery license to W. Richard Hubbard, 150 Valley Road.

Mr. Hubbard told Committee that he would operate his taxi from Nassau Street (he holds a Borough license) and

LIGHTS FROM SWEDEN: At Christmas-time in the north, young Swedish girls celebrate the feast of Santa Lucia, carrying lighted tapers and singing the traditional Italian "Santa Lucia" in Swedish. At the Christmas party given by the YWCA's International Club, a group of Swedish girls living in Princeton re-created the custom, marching slowly through a darkened room with their candles and singing the old melody. The "Santa Lucia," wears her candles in a traditional crown and heads the procession. In the Princeton celebration, "Santa Lucia" was Elizabeth Salen. (Staff Photos)

CHRISTMAS PLANS MADE

At Princeton Hospital. Christmas decorations and the spirit of Christmas are evident everywhere at Princeton Hospital.

With the holiday only days away, departments and nursing floors are busy vying with one another in the variety of their decorations; ambulatory patients are decorating trees in solariums, painted mice now scamper across the windows of the Outpatient Department and painted Santas have appeared in the Accident Dispensary. Everyone at the hospital is busy making this a Christmas to remember.

The spirit of Christmas is evident in various ways. The staff nurses, instead of holding a party for themselves this year, have collected $100 which will be used by the various clinics. Christmas carols will be piped throughout the hospital and special holiday meals will be served by tray girls in full Santa Claus regalia. On Christmas morning, John W. Kauffman, hospital administrator, will visit each patient and each guest at Merwick and present them with individual gifts.

Community clubs and agencies have joined in, too. The Lions Auxiliary has given toys and gifts to children in the Pediatric clinic and other clinics; the Princeton Garden Club has made special wreaths; Merwick residents received corsages from the Hopewell Valley Women's Club and had their rooms decorated by the Stony Brook Garden Club. Caroling groups from the Lutheran Church of the Messiah and an informal group from the Theological Seminary visited the Hospital last week.

At Merwick, the Soroptomist Club of Princeton will hold its annual tree-trimming party on Thursday, an event the Club has sponsored since the founding of Merwick. Earlier in the month the Columbus Boychoir School sang for Merwick's guests.

Junior members of the Princeton Chapter of the American Red Cross are not forgetting the children who have been hospitalized this Christmas. They are filling special stockings for them.

ADMITTED TO COLLEGE

On "Early Plan" Basis. Two more Princeton High School seniors have been accepted by the colleges of their choice under the "early admission" policy. They are Lynne Marck and Sue Mesner, both of whom live on the Princeton-Kingston Road.

Miss Marck will attend Western Maryland and Miss Mesner, Hood College, also in Maryland. All "early admission" applicants are accepted by the college of their first choice on a basis of work completed at the end of their junior year in high school.
